PLATFORM MAKERS WORKING HARD

Committee of Nine in Charge of Work of Formulating Exact Wording of President Wilson's Outlined Platform.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
St. Louis, June 15.—Nine hand-picked Democratic leaders today manned the roller which will carry President Wilson's personally conducted platform through the Democratic convention.

Confronted with several prospective fights for alterations in the platform, the administration forces withheld President Wilson's final platform, "suggestions" until they were submitted today to a sub-committee of the convention resolutions committee made up of nine of the safest and sanest of the Democratic delegates. The "Big Nine" to whom Secretary of War Baker today turned over his closely guarded presidential platform draft were: Senators Hollis of New Hampshire; Pomerene of Ohio; Martin of Virginia; Walsh of Montana; and Stone of Missouri, the chairman of the committee; Representatives Fitzgerald of New York; Rainey of Illinois; A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania; and Governor A. O. Stanley of Kentucky.

For administration purposes no better selection could have been made and the sub-committee settled down determined to accept the ratification of the presidential ideas in a little more than six hours. The sub-committee met early today and a meeting of the full committee was called for 3:30 this afternoon to receive its report. The make-up of the sub-committee made it certain that whatever changes were to be made in the administration platform draft of any consequence would have to be made in the full committee, and the full committee members were prepared for a struggle.

As it came from Washington the platform contained a plank setting forth that the Democratic party favors the extension of the right of suffrage to women. The plank, like that adopted by the Republicans in 1912, but it is eliminated we will carry the fight into the full committee where I am sure we can command a majority in favor of granting votes for women. When this platform is adopted I am confident it will contain a woman suffrage plank."

"It is possible that we will not be able to keep the suffrage plank in the platform in the sub-committee," said Senator Hollis, who led the suffrage fight, "but if it is eliminated we will carry the fight into the full committee where I am sure we can command a majority in favor of granting votes for women. When this platform is adopted I am confident it will contain a woman suffrage plank."

In the full committee the suffragists had the support of various western delegates who could be depended on to favor the enfranchisement of the women. The suffrage lobby had worked hard with the committees and they were confident of a majority.

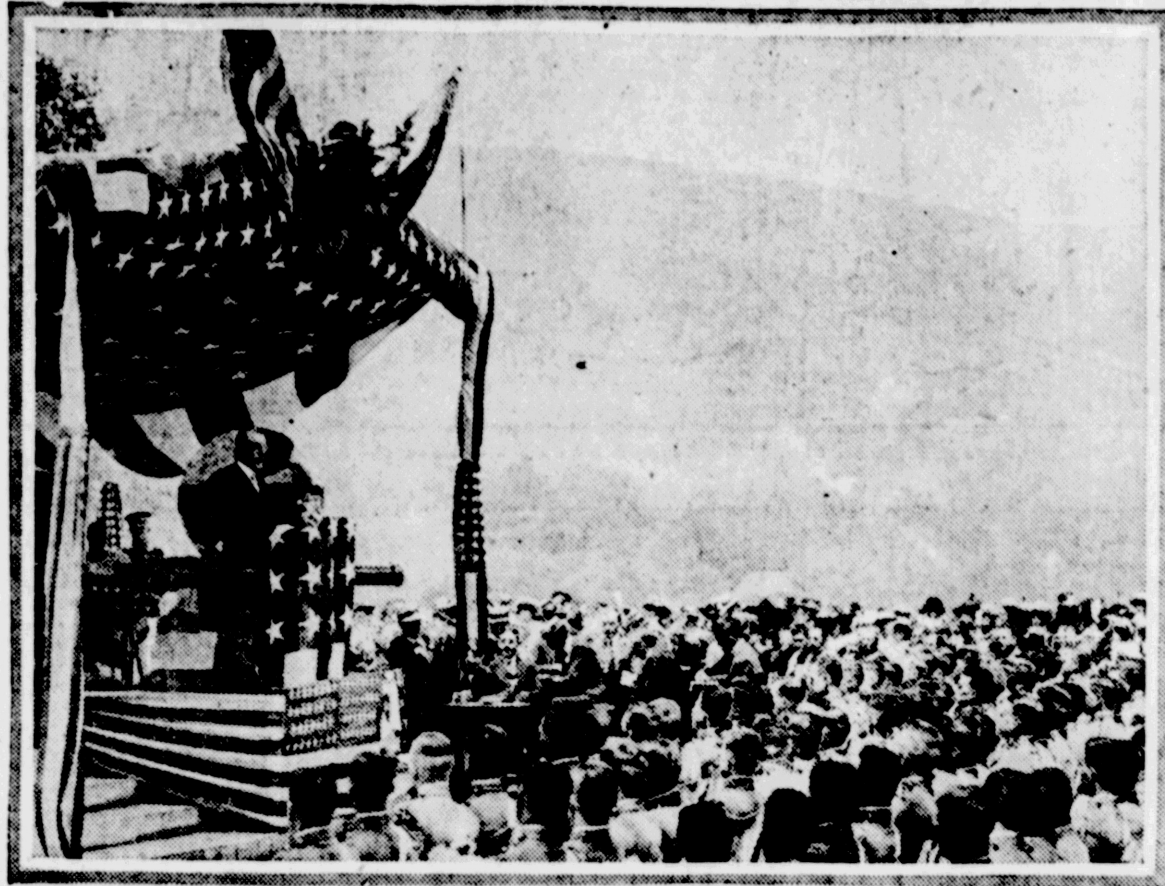

The question of "hyphenated Americans" was the subject of a serious fight, and the proponents of a strong plank on this proposition were encouraged to vigorous efforts by President Wilson's strong statement on this point in his Flag Day speech yesterday. They declared that if the president could publicly declare that the "hyphen must absolutely be crushed out in America," there was no reason why the Democratic platform should not state the proposition just as strongly. The Americanism proposed in the tentative draft before the sub-committee was not made public, but it was made clear that unless the platform as it came from the sub-committee was clear and virile there would be a bitter fight when the platform reached the full committee.

Senator Hastings of Wisconsin, a member of the resolution committee, was particularly emphatic in this regard.

"I expect and hope," he said as the sub-committee deliberated, "that when the platform reaches the full committee it will contain a strong plank on 'hyphenated Americans.' It is necessary to use that expression, but we must take up the challenge thrown down at Chicago. Representatives of a certain organization of foreign-born Americans were charged some time ago with having organized an effort to control the political conventions this year. After the Republican nomination was made representatives of this same organization declared that they had won their fight and that their candidate had been nominated. This whole matter should be dragged into the limelight now and cleared up. We should know whether the ideas and aims of any foreign nation can be imposed upon the American people. This matter should be made the paramount issue of this campaign."

The attitude of Senator Hastings and other members of the resolutions committee made it certain that some statement on this question would be presented to the full committee, with a strong and spectacular fight behind it for inclusion in the platform.

The sub-committee in addition to the presidential suggestions, formally submitted by Secretary Baker, was confronted by a mass of miscellaneous platform material submitted by various organizations and individuals in the opening hearings held by the full resolutions committee. These included woman suffrage, the extensive proposals of the representatives of organized labor,

STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR.

Automobile Badly Damaged on Fair Street Wednesday Evening.

H. G. Smith, the Old Hurley blacksmith, met with an accident just after starting his automobile from in front of the Stuyvesant Hotel on Fair street a few minutes before eight o'clock Wednesday evening, when he was struck by a Kingston City trolley car going in the same direction. Mr. Smith had parked his car near the Fair street entrance to the hotel, directly behind a touring car in which several guests at the hotel were to go to the Kraft-Gray wedding, and was preparing to get away about the same time that the car ahead was preparing to start for St. James's M. E. Church. He cranked his engine, took his place at the wheel and started his car, pulling out to the center of the street to pass the other car, when the trolley car came swiftly behind and crashed in the side of his automobile, slamming it against the car ahead. The impact of the collision crumpled up the mud guard, running board and tool box as though they had been made of paper, and the Smith car was pushed against the car ahead with sufficient force to crowd it to the curb. The engines of both automobiles were at once stopped and the trolley car was brought to a standstill until Motorman Walter Hyatt and Conductor Edward McDonough could ascertain the extent of the damage. Mr. Smith had been thrown violently against his windshield but was not injured. The other car was not damaged, and its occupants were not hurt, although they were somewhat frightened at the shaking up they received. Mr. Smith stated the facts to Policeman Fout, and said that when he cranked his engine and took his seat he had looked up Fair street in the direction of North Front street but saw no trolley car approaching, or he would not have attempted to start.

NOMINATIONS AT NIGHT SESSION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Convention Hall, St. Louis, June 15.—Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Marshall will be placed in nomination for president and vice president respectively at a session of the Democratic national convention beginning at 8 o'clock tonight. This was decided on by the rules committee of the convention following a lengthy and stormy session held prior to the opening of today's session of the convention.

The committee had decided that the original program was to be adhered to, and that the nominations should follow the adoption of the platform tomorrow. But even while the committee was making up its mind that this should be the program, the big party leaders were in session at their hotel with Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and decided that the demands of the delegates for the hurrying up of the proceedings must be met. In consequence they sent word to the rules committee that the precedent established in Baltimore four years ago must be followed and the nominations precede the adoption of the platform.

After the situation had been explained by J. Bruce Kremer, secretary of the convention, who was directed to present the position of the leaders to the committee, it decided to change its plans and follow the advice of the leaders.

The convention was long delayed in getting together as a result of the big party leaders, headed by Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, taking the initiative and forcing the committee on rules to permit the nomination of the candidates tonight instead of waiting until tomorrow. But when that was finally settled, things moved rapidly, and at 11:50, Chairman Martin H. Glynn called the convention to order. Glynn was given an ovation as he dropped the gavel, and it was fully a minute before he was able to restore order and introduce to the delegates Rt. Rev. Archbishop John J. Glennon of St. Louis, who offered the opening invocation.

The report of the committee on credentials was presented by its chair, man, Major Joseph E. Bell, of Indianapolis. It seated the delegates whose names had been placed on the temporary roll from the district of Columbia and Hawaii and divided the votes from Porto Rico between the contestants and contestees with half a vote each. In all other particulars the temporary roll was approved as made up by the national committee. The report was accepted.

The committee on permanent organization presented the report of that body through its chairman, W. W. Graves, of Missouri.

It provided that U. S. Senator Ollie M. James should be elected permanent chairman and that all of the temporary officers be made permanent.

A committee made up of Norman E. Mack of New York, Governor S. V. Stewart of Montana and Senator James E. Phelan of California, escorted the giant Kentuckian to the chair.

James, always a favorite at a Democratic gathering, was given an enthusiastic greeting as he appeared on the platform.

MUSCULAR STRAIN PAINS ROOSEVELT

Trouble Not Regarded as Dangerous, Although it is Exceedingly Painful at Times—No Political Conferences.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 15.—Col. Roosevelt's affliction is merely a muscular strain in the region of the rib which was fractured when he was thrown from a horse a year ago. This was made known today after Col. Roosevelt had visited his physician, Dr. Arthur B. Duell. X-ray photographs taken by Dr. E. E. Caldwell showed that the ailment was not of much consequence. When coughing, however, Col. Roosevelt suffers intense pain.

The colonel did not appear to be seriously ill when he left his room in the Langdon Hotel today. He told the newspaper men that he had no statement to make. His secretary, John F. McGrath, said that Mr. Roosevelt would have no conferences with politicians today and expected to return to Oyster Bay tomorrow.

As it came from Washington the platform contained a plank setting forth that the Democratic party favors the extension of the right of suffrage to women. The plank, like that adopted by the Republicans at Chicago, however, makes it clear that legislation as to the right of suffrage is a matter peculiarly pertaining to the states. In the suffrage proposal the sub-committee found about the only particular in which the presidential draft was in danger. The committee stood 5 to 4 against any suffrage declaration.

"It is possible that we will not be able to keep the suffrage plank in the platform in the sub-committee," said Senator Hollis, who led the suffrage fight, "but if it is eliminated we will carry the fight into the full committee where I am sure we can command a majority in favor of granting votes for women. ### BOTTLERS MEET IN NEWBURGH.

Permanent Association to Be Formed in Hudson Valley.

The Hudson Valley Bottlers' Association met in Newburgh Tuesday night, discussed plans for the usefulness of the organization and elected temporary officers. There were representatives present from Beacon, Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Middletown, Warwick and Newburgh. The main object of the association is to devise ways and means that will protect the bottlers from heavy losses in bottles annually.

All of these letters were argued at some length before the committee and were turned over to the sub-committee for consideration. It was acknowledged, however, that most of them had little chance of successful passage through the rocky passes of the sub-committee. Delegates smiled today when they looked over the list of the "Big Nine." The five senators were accepted as "administration men" on their Washington reputations. They constituted a majority of the committee and it was certain that nothing which could arouse the slightest White House opposition would get by them. Representative Fitzgerald is an old time organization man and Governor Stanley is a "regular of regulars." Representative Rainey was pronounced a Wilsonite, and his authorship of the president's tariff commission bill was cited as proof of the fact.

The resolutions committee made a vigorous effort to silence any differences over the president's tariff plank which, after re-affirming the Democratic doctrine of tariff for revenue only proceeded to recommend the enactment of an anti-dumping law to help American industry. Democrats who have fought the Republican protective tariff since the protective theory was advanced, stood aghast at the anti-dumping proposal.

"Protection pure and simple," said one old line leader. "Why can't we frame a real Democratic tariff plank such as we have had for years, without any new-fangled attachments that mean protection in disguise?"

But the indications were that the sub-committee and the resolutions committee would accept the presidential dictum on tariff, as it will on almost everything else, after the free for all is over and the futile fights have been disposed of.

STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR.

Automobile Badly Damaged on Fair Street Wednesday Evening.

H. G. Smith, the Old Hurley blacksmith, met with an accident just after starting his automobile from in front of the Stuyvesant Hotel on Fair street a few minutes before eight o'clock Wednesday evening, when he was struck by a Kingston City trolley car going in the same direction. Mr. Smith had parked his car near the Fair street entrance to the hotel, directly behind a touring car in which several guests at the hotel were to go to the Kraft-Gray wedding, and was preparing to get away about the same time that the car ahead was preparing to start for St. James's M. E. Church. He cranked his engine, took his place at the wheel and started his car, pulling out to the center of the street to pass the other car, when the trolley car came swiftly behind and crashed in the side of his automobile, slamming it against the car ahead. The impact of the collision crumpled up the mud guard, running board and tool box as though they had been made of paper, and the Smith car was pushed against the car ahead with sufficient force to crowd it to the curb. The engines of both automobiles were at once stopped and the trolley car was brought to a standstill until Motorman Walter Hyatt and Conductor Edward McDonough could ascertain the extent of the damage. Mr. Smith had been thrown violently against his windshield but was not injured. The other car was not damaged, and its occupants were not hurt, although they were somewhat frightened at the shaking up they received. Mr. Smith stated the facts to Policeman Fout, and said that when he cranked his engine and took his seat he had looked up Fair street in the direction of North Front street but saw no trolley car approaching, or he would not have attempted to start.

NOMINATIONS AT NIGHT SESSION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Convention Hall, St. Louis, June 15.—Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Marshall will be placed in nomination for president and vice president respectively at a session of the Democratic national convention beginning at 8 o'clock tonight. This was decided on by the rules committee of the convention following a lengthy and stormy session held prior to the opening of today's session of the convention.

The committee had decided that the original program was to be adhered to, and that the nominations should follow the adoption of the platform tomorrow. But even while the committee was making up its mind that this should be the program, the big party leaders were in session at their hotel with Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and decided that the demands of the delegates for the hurrying up of the proceedings must be met. In consequence they sent word to the rules committee that the precedent established in Baltimore four years ago must be followed and the nominations precede the adoption of the platform.

After the situation had been explained by J. Bruce Kerner, secretary of the convention, who was directed to present the position of the leaders to the committee, it decided to change its plans and follow the advice of the leaders.

The convention was long delayed in getting together as a result of the big party leaders, headed by Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, taking the initiative and forcing the committee on rules to permit the nomination of the candidates tonight instead of waiting until tomorrow. But when that was finally settled, things moved rapidly, and at 11:50 Chairman Martin H. Glynn called the convention to order. Glynn was given an ovation as he dropped the gavel, and it was fully a minute before he was able to restore order and introduce to the delegates Rt. Rev. Archbishop John J. Glennon of St. Louis, who offered the opening invocation.

The report of the committee on credentials was presented by its chair, man, Major Joseph E. Bell, of Indianapolis. It seated the delegates whose names had been placed on the temporary roll from the district of Columbia and Hawaii and divided the votes from Porto Rico between the contestants and contested with half a vote each. In all other particulars the temporary roll was approved as made up by the national committee. The report was approved.

The committee on permanent organization presented the report of that body through its chairman, W. W. Graves, of Missouri.

It provided that U. S. Senator Ollie M. James should be elected permanent chairman and that all of the temporary officers be made permanent.

A committee made up of Norman E. Mack of New York, Governor S. V. Stewart of Montana and Senator James E. Phelan of California, escorted the giant Kentuckian to the chair.

James, always a favorite at a Democratic gathering, was given an enthusiastic greeting as he appeared on the platform.

MUSCULAR STRAIN PAINS ROOSEVELT

Trouble Not Regarded as Dangerous, Although it is Extremely Painful at Times—No Political Conferences.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 15.—Col. Roosevelt's affliction is merely a muscular strain in the region of the rib which was fractured when he was thrown from a horse a year ago. This was made known today after Col. Roosevelt had visited his physician, Dr. Arthur B. Duell. X-ray photographs taken by Dr. E. Caldwell showed that the ailment was not of much consequence. When coughing, however, Col. Roosevelt suffers intense pain.

The colonel did not appear to be seriously ill when he left his room in the Langdon Hotel today. He told the newspaper men that he had no statement to make. His secretary, John F. McGrath, said that Mr. Roosevelt would have no conferences with politicians today and expected to return to Oyster Bay tomorrow.

CRAGAN INJURED AT CATSKILL

Chain on Pile Driver Slips and Knocked Joseph Cragan of This City in the River at That Place on Wednesday.

Joseph Cragan of Rondout, while working on the new Day Line dock at the Point Wednesday afternoon, was knocked off the pile driver owned by Captain Alex. Sturgeon, into the river. He was rescued by his companions and hurried to the Catskill hospital, where it was found his nose was broken and Dr. L. B. Honeyford found it necessary to take several stitches to close deep gashes in his head. It was feared this afternoon that his skull is fractured but it will be necessary to wait a few hours before the complete extent of his injuries can be ascertained.

The accident was caused by the slipping of a heavy chain from a large oak log which was being used as a lever to pull old piles out of the river. When the chain slipped the log struck Cragan a glancing blow on the side of the head, knocking him overboard. The injured man when taken from the water was in a dazed condition, although Captain Sturgeon stated that the blow he received was hard enough to render any ordinary man unconscious. A fellow-workman at the dock was grazed by a flying timber but was not injured.—Catskill Mail.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

DAINTY CUSTARD.

Nothing of worth or weight can be achieved with half a mind, with faint heart, and with lame endeavor.

The real man is one who always finds excuses for others, but never excuses himself.—H. W. Beecher.

Custards of various kinds are always favorite desserts and may be shared with the children. One egg to a cupful of milk and a tablespoonful of sugar will make two small custards and the consistency will be good unless the custard is wanted for molding. In that case more egg will be necessary to make it stand up. Cup custards are more festive in appearance if decorated with a spoonful of bright-colored jelly, a candied cherry or cranberry, or a spoonful of whipped cream and a sprinkling of nuts. Baked custard has a finer flavor than the boiled and is particularly good with fruit tarts or fresh berries.

Care should be taken about the cooking. If baked, place the custards or the custard dish in hot water and watch carefully not to overbake, as it will separate and be tough and coarse. Custard should be smooth and velvety when cooked. Test it with a clean knife; if it comes out clean the custard is cooked.

Nutmeg is a good flavor for simple custards, or orange rind, grated maple sugar or caramel, all are favorites. Chocolate or cocoa sprinkled over the top just before serving is liked by chocolate lovers, or it may be put on as it goes into the oven. A pinch of salt is a necessary adjunct to a well-flavored custard and without it is flat and tasteless.

An orange-flavored custard is served with a teaspoonful of orange marmalade on top.

Caramel Custard.—Put a half cupful of sugar in a omelet pan, stir occasionally until melted and a light brown color. Add a quart of milk gradually, stirring carefully; then add the milk to five eggs beaten slightly, add a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of vanilla and strain into a buttered mold. Chill and serve with a caramel sauce. This custard is rich enough to mold; four eggs will make it sufficiently rich, although the more eggs the more nutritious.

For the sauce, brown a cupful of the sugar and add a half cupful of water. Cool before serving.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Vosburgh of Shady, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Blanche Margaret, of this city, to Chester A. Burhans of Philadelphia, Pa.

Another enjoyable affair to be held at the Kingston Point Casino is the dance given by the Loyal Friends Aid Society on Tuesday evening, June 20. The fact that the Casino is so lovely a place and by the charitable organization of the Loyal Friends, should undoubtedly draw a large crowd. Steve Miller's orchestra will furnish the music. The public is cordially invited.

A pleasantly anticipated social event of the near future is the private dance to be given by the Daughters of Isabella at the Oriental Pavilion at Kingston Point, on the evening of Tuesday, June 20. Each member of the organization may invite two guests and the calling card of the inviting member must be presented by the guests with the invitations at the time of the dance. Excellent music will be furnished.

McGeeney-Nichols.

St. Michael's Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., on Sunday last was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Miss Clara Nichols of Bay Ridge became the bride of Francis McGeeney, formerly of Kingston. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Carroll. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Joseph Nichols, wore a beautiful gown of white tulle, trimmed with pearls and real lace. Her veil was caught up with sprays of orange blossoms and she wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaid, Miss Mae Frates of Midwood, wore a pink dress, over crepe de chine, with a very winsome picture hat of the same shade. She carried Killarney roses. The best man was Thomas McGeeney, a nephew of the groom. The ushers were Philip Rice, a brother-in-law, and James McGeeney, a brother of the groom. After the ceremony an elaborate reception followed at the home of the bride's mother. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. James McGeeney, Patrick McGeeney, Mr. and Mrs. William A. McGeeney, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haber, Mrs. Charles Rice, of Kingston, Mrs. A. Daly, Miss Anna Daly, Neil Allan, Miss Janet McGeeney, Mr. and Mrs. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. Ward, the Misses Reiten and Anna Meehan, Mr. and Mrs. Lougran, Mr. and Mrs. Hibenstett of Rockville Center. After their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. McGeeney will reside in Bay Ridge in their newly furnished apartment.

Kneeing-Coddington.

Highland, June 15.—Saturday afternoon at 6 o'clock the First M. E. Church of this place was the scene of a brilliant wedding when the Rev. J. C. Coddington, in his most felicitous manner, in the presence of a fashionable throng, performed the ceremony that made his sister, Julia Coddington, the bride of Mr. Kneeing of Bayonne N. J. As the hour drew near the organist, Mrs. Kelsey Staples, rendered the wedding march exquisitely, and the bride and groom entered the center aisle with the four ushers. Then came the two little flower girls, beautifully dressed in white with pink sashes, and they carried baskets of pink and white carnations. They were followed by the bridesmaids, who came in white silk and lace, with tulle veil, carrying a shower bouquet of bride roses, orchids and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, as maid of honor, who was gowned in cream satin with large white picture hat, carrying a large bouquet of pink roses and carnations. They were met at the altar by the groom, his brother acting as best man, and minister. The ring service was beautifully performed by the bride's father, who was seated at the parsonage, where 50 attended. There were many from out of town. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, spring flowers, daisies and lilies. In fact it was a bower of beauty. Many beautiful wedding gifts were received, including silver, cut glass, hand painted China, furniture, linen and checks. They have gone on a wedding trip, after which they will reside in Bayonne, where they have a fine bungalow. Best wishes go with them from many friends here.

Kraft-Gray.

St. James's M. E. Church was the scene on Wednesday evening of a brilliant social gathering, filling the church, the occasion being the wedding of Miss Florence D. Gray, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Gray of Albany avenue, to William Russell Kraft, son of the Hon. and Mrs. John E. Kraft of this city. The church was elaborately decorated with palms, ferns, mountain laurel and daisies. Each aisle leading to the platform where the floral decorations were massed as a setting to the bride party, ended in an arch of the mountain laurel. A program of appropriate music was played before and during the ceremony by Ford Hummel, violinist, with Mrs. Hummel presiding at the organ. The young ladies who are members of the Queen Esther Circle of the church, an organization of which the bride was a member, occupied seats in the center of the church. At the appointed time, 8 o'clock, the bride party entered the church. The bride, who was given away by her father, was exquisitely gowned in white satin and pearl-embroidered chiffon with Duchesse lace. The veil of tulle was caught with orange blossoms and a fillet of pearls and extended the entire length of the court train of satin. The bride's bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley, bride roses and white orchids. The bridesmaids were Miss Doris Hasbrouck and Miss Fan Alliger of this city; and Miss Kathryn Upson and Miss Florence Edwards of New York city, classmates of the bride at Vassar. Their costumes of rainbow tints, Miss Hasbrouck's being pale green, Miss Alliger's orchid lavender, Miss Upson's pale blue, Miss Edwards' pale yellow tulle, were a combination of 1930 and Louis seize mode. The Louis seize panniers were of tulle, draped over tulle, the pointed bodices being laced and finished with picturesque lace fleecus. They carried quaint, "nose-gay" bouquets. Miss Rebecca Martin, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Stephen D. Hiltzbrand as matron of honor, wore gowns of similar mode, but of shades of pale pink tulle, and they, too, carried old fashioned bouquets.

Mrs. Gray, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in ivory tulle with white lace, while Mrs. Kraft, mother of the groom, wore an elegant gown of white satin and lace.

The best man was Kenneth Archer of this city. The ushers were Harry G. Dashiels of Smithfield, Virginia, D. M. Wadley of Richmond, Virginia, Jansen A. McEntee of Akron, Ohio, classmates of the groom at Virginia Military Institute, Roger Hall Loughran of this city and Daniel Herick of Boston, Mass., formerly of Kingston. The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. T. H. Baragwanath, pastor of the church, was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gray, there being some two hundred guests in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Kraft left town during the evening for Virginia, where they will spend their honeymoon. Among the out of town guests were Miss Marie Overstreet, New York city; Miss Ayrina Pugh, Racine, Wisconsin; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wawter of Evanston, Illinois; the Hon. and Mrs. John C. Birdseye of Albany; ex-Senator and Mrs. Walter C. Burton of Brooklyn; Judge and Mrs. Alton B. Parker of Esopus; Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Moore of Elizabeth, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Leo De Bell of Pompano Lake, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Nalle of City Point, Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse P. Mills of Poughkeepsie and Mrs. M. Robinson of Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Quick Wit On the Stage.

Richard Mansfield created the role of Beau Brummel. W. J. Ferguson acted the valet in the original production. In the character of the valet it was Ferguson's place to hand the Beau his gloves, his stick and finally his hat. Upon the opening night he proffered the hat to Mansfield, turned the wrong way around. Had the Beau put on the hat in the way it was handed to him and strolled down Piccadilly or Bond street the faux pas might have created a scandal. When Ferguson discovered his error he turned pale under his makeup.

Mansfield was quick to grasp the situation and with one of his most courtly bows gave the hat back to the valet so that he might turn it around, which Ferguson did with pantomimic apology.

As Mansfield put on the hat and passed out of the door he whispered to Ferguson: "That's a good piece of business. Keep it in."—New York Telegraph.

Some Riddles.

What does the billiard ball do when it stops? Answer.—It looks round. Sometimes in water, sometimes out, sometimes a head on it and sometimes without? Answer.—A pillowcase. What is that which is put on the table, cut, handed round, but never eaten? Answer.—A pack of playing cards. Why are the banknotes better than gold coins? Answer.—Because when you put a banknote in your purse you double it and when you take it out you find it increases.

What is taken from you before you get it? Answer.—Your photograph.

Where Women Rule.

Near the Cape of Shima, in Japan, there is a village the name of which in Japanese means "The Settlement of Nymphs." Woman in this village is the predominant partner. The chief industry is pearl fishing, and it is the women who are the fishers. The men stay at home and do the housework.

Value of a Name.

"What's in a name?" asked the man who indulges in quotations. "That question," replied Mr. Cumrox, "shows your unfamiliarity with art. It is evident that you never paid the extra charge for the signature on an oil painting."—Washington Star.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.
Bed Sores.
During a long illness in bed the pressure upon the surface of the body is steady, and unless various parts are subjected to pressure bed sores will form from too long continued pressure upon one part. The aged are more liable to have bed sores than younger persons. Those suffering from paralysis are the greatest of all sufferers. It is important to keep the sheet smooth under the patient. A ridge in the sheet will rub a sore into the skin made tender by lying so long in the recumbent position. If the patient is heavy it is not necessary to lift him. Roll him over or ease him up with a pillow three or four times a day. An air cushion is a great protection against bed sores, as well as a resting place for the tired, fretted skin.
All parts exposed to pressure should be bathed with alcohol several times a day. When this has dried dust the locality with talcum powder.

CRAGAN INJURED AT CATSKILL

Chain on Pile Driver Slips and Knocked Joseph Cragan of This City in the River at That Place on Wednesday.

Joseph Cragan of Rondout, while working on the new Day Line dock at the Point Wednesday afternoon, was knocked off the pile driver owned by Captain Alex. Sturgeon, into the river. He was rescued by his companions and hurried to the Catskill hospital, where it was found his nose was broken and Dr. L. B. Honeyford found it necessary to take several stitches to close deep gashes in his head. It was feared this afternoon that his skull is fractured but it will be necessary to wait a few hours before the complete extent of his injuries can be ascertained.

The accident was caused by the slipping of a heavy chain from a large oak log which was being used as a lever to pull old piles out of the river. When the chain slipped the log struck Cragan a glancing blow on the side of the head, knocking him overboard.

The injured man when taken from the water was in a dazed condition, although Captain Sturgeon stated that the blow he received was hard enough to render any ordinary man unconscious. A fellow-workman at the dock was grazed by a flying timber but was not injured.—Catskill Mail.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

DAINTY CUSTARD.

Nothing of worth or weight can be achieved with half a mind, with faint heart, and with lame endeavor.

The real man is one who always finds excuses for others, but never excuses himself.—H. W. Beecher.

Custards of various kinds are always favorite desserts and may be shared with the children. One egg to a cupful of milk and a tablespoonful of sugar will make two small custards and the consistency will be good unless the custard is wanted for molding. In that case more egg will be necessary to make it stand up. Cup custards are more festive in appearance if decorated with a spoonful of brightly colored jelly, a candied cherry or cranberry, or a spoonful of whipped cream and a sprinkling of nuts. Baked custard has a finer flavor than the boiled and is particularly good with fruit tarts or fresh berries.

Care should be taken about the cooking. If baked, place the custards or the custard dish in hot water and watch carefully not to overbake, as it will separate and be tough and coarse. Custard should be smooth and velvety when cooked. Test it with a clean knife; if it comes out clean the custard is cooked.

Nutmeg is a good flavor for simple custards, or orange rind, grated maple sugar or caramel, all are favorites. Chocolate or cocoa sprinkled over the top just before serving is liked by chocolate lovers, or it may be put on as it goes into the oven. A pinch of salt is a necessary adjunct to a well-flavored custard and without it it is flat and tasteless.

An orange-flavored custard is served with a teaspoonful of orange marmalade on top.

Caramel Custard.—Put a half cupful of sugar in a omelet pan, stir occasionally until melted and a light brown color. Add a quart of milk gradually, stirring carefully; then add the milk to five eggs beaten slightly, add a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of vanilla and strain into a buttered mold. Chill and serve with a caramel sauce. This custard is rich enough to mold; four eggs will make it sufficiently rich, although the more eggs the more nutritious.

For the sauce, brown a cupful of the sugar and add a half cupful of water. Cool before serving.

RICH COLONY IS SEIZED IN AFRICA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—If the reported occupation of Ruanda, German East Africa, by Belgian troops from the Congo, and their establishment of a provisional government in this territory prove to be authentic, one of the richest colonial prizes of this world war has been won by the nation which has suffered most in Europe. Concerning this region, its people and its colonization possibilities, the following bulletin has been issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters:

"If Belgium is able to retain her hold on the Ruanda region of the German East African protectorate she will possess the most densely populated as well as one of the most fertile and salubrious territories of Central Africa.

"Ruanda lies to the east of Lake Kiwu, through which runs the boundary line between the Upper Congo region and the German possessions. To the north lies British East Africa. The Kagera river, also known as the Alexandra Nile, flowing in irregular S shape, east, north and emptying into Lake Victoria Nyanza, is the eastern boundary.

"While there are two considerable tracks of forest in Ruanda, the central portion of the territory is bare of trees, but on the mountain slopes there is to be found wonderfully rich grass, on which graze magnificent herds of cattle that constitute the chief wealth of the natives. The agricultural possibilities of the region are almost unlimited.

"One of the most striking advantages of this territory is its high altitude, an average of nearly a mile above sea level, so that although it lies under an equatorial sun, the temperature is usually about the same as that of a warm summer day in central Europe. Malarial mosquitoes are not known here, nor does the dread tsetse-fly hover over the land, bringing sleeping-sickness to human beings and quicker death to cattle.

"Two remarkable contrasts are to be found among the natives of this region. The highly developed, intelligent Watutsi are magnificent physical specimens, lithe, well-proportioned, and athletic. It is not uncommon to meet men from five feet eleven inches to seven feet two inches tall. On the other hand, on the island of Kwidischewi, in Lake Kiwu, and in the bamboo forest of Bugole the traveler finds the pygmy Patwa tribe, whose spear-carrying warriors are under five feet in height, shy, timid and devoted almost entirely to the chase. The aborigines belong to neither of these tribes, however, but are the Wahutu, a medium-sized, agricultural people. The black sultan of the region, one of the world's most powerful potentates ruling in territory held by white colonists, is a Watutsi. His word, subject to the censorship of the European resident or governor, is law to a million and a half people.

"There is abundant water in Ruanda, the small mountain streams never running dry. When the grass becomes parched on the hillside the natives burn it off and immediately there springs up fresh, tender pasture for the cattle.

"The pernicious salutation among friends is one of the interesting customs of the country. Upon meeting they either place their arms lightly upon the waist or else grasp each other's elbows, holding them for a while, then one declares 'I wish you cattle,' while the other replies, 'I wish you women.'

"This region was first explored in 1894 by Count von Gotzen, formerly governor of German East Africa, who came from the coast as far as Lake Kiwu, about which Arab traders had frequently brought vague reports. This beautiful, island-dotted body of water, 5,000 feet above sea level, was the last considerable lake to be discovered in Central Africa. Its outlet is the Rusizi river, which flows south into the famous Lake Tanganyika.

"One of the most noted parties of exploration which has visited Ruanda was that headed by Adolphus Frederick, Duke of Mecklenburg, who marched through the territory with an impressive retinue of carriers in 1907-8. In his report he said of this region: 'Ruanda is eminently adapted for colonization by white men. The country possesses a fabulous amount of wealth in its herds, to the breeding of which its pastoral people are particularly devoted. Also agriculture may be carried on in a remunerative way, for the quality of the cattle itself is an excellent as that of the milk they yield. As to the quality of the soil, it simply leaves nothing to be desired, so that it is evident that there is a splendid opening here for the establishment of business on a vast scale.'

Her veil was caught up with sprays of orange blossoms and she wore a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaid, Miss Mae Frates of Midwood Manor, Flatbush, wore a pink Georgette crepe dress, over crepe de chine, with a very winsome picture hat of the same shade. She carried Killarney roses. The best man was Thomas McGeeney, a nephew of the groom. The ushers were Philip Rice, a brother-in-law and James McGeeney, a brother of the groom. After the ceremony an elaborate reception followed at the home of the bride's mother. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. James McGeeney, Patrick McGeeney, Mr. and Mrs. William J. ### Kneesing-Coddington.

Highland, June 15.—Saturday afternoon at 6 o'clock the First M. E. Church of this place was the scene of a brilliant wedding when the Rev. J. C. Coddington, in his most felicitous manner, in the presence of a fashionable throng, performed the ceremony that made his sister, Miss Julia Coddington, the bride of Mr. Kneesing of Bayonne, N. J. As the hour drew near the organist, Mrs. Kelsey Staples, rendered the wedding march exquisitely, and the bridal party entered the center aisle with the four ushers. Then came the two little flower girls, beautifully dressed in white with pink sashes, and the carried baskets of pink sweet peas. Following them came the bride charmingly gowned in white silk and lace, with tulle veil, carrying a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, as maid of honor, who was gowned in cream satin with large white picture and, carrying a large bouquet of pink roses, and carnations. They were met at the altar by the groom, his brother acting as best man and minister. The ring service was beautiful, the bride being given in marriage by her father. There was a reception held at the parsonage, where 50 attended. There were many from out of town. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, spring flowers and iris. In fact it was a bower of beauty. Many beautiful wedding gifts were received, including silver cut glass, hand painted China, furniture, linen and crockery. They have gone on a wedding trip, after which they will reside in Bayonne, where they have a fine bungalow. Best wishes go with them from many friends here.

Kraft-Gray.

St. James's M. E. Church was the scene on Wednesday evening of a brilliant social gathering, filling the church, the occasion being the wedding of Miss Florence D. Gray, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Gray of Albany avenue, to William Russell Kraft, son of the Hon. and Mrs. John E. Kraft of this city. The church was elaborately decorated with palms, ferns, mountain laurel and daisies. Each aisle leading to the platform where the floral decorations were massed as a setting to the bride party, ended in an arch of the mountain laurel. A program of appropriate music was played before and during the ceremony by Ford Hamme, violinist, with Mrs. Hummel presiding at the organ. The young ladies who are members of the Queen Esther Circle of the church, an organization of which the bride was a member, occupied seats in the center of the church. At the appointed time, 8 o'clock, the bride party entered the church. The bride, who was given away by her father, was exquisitely gowned in white satin and post-embroidered chiffon with Duchess lace. The veil of tulle was caught with orange blossoms and a fillet of pearls and extended the entire length of the court train of satin. The bride's bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley, bride roses and white orchids. The bridesmaids were Miss Doris Hasbrouck and Miss Ann Alliger of this city; and Miss Kathryn Upson and Miss Florence Edwards of New York city, classmates of the bride at Vassar. Their costumes of rainbow tulle, Miss Hasbrouck's being pale green, Miss Alliger's orchid lavender, Miss Upson's pale blue, Miss Edwards' pale yellow tulle, were a combination of 1830 and Louis seize mode. The Louis seize panniers were of tulle, draped over tulle, the pointed bodices being laced and finished with picturesque lace fichus. They carried quaint, "nose-gay" bouquets. Miss Rebecca Martin, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Stephen D. Hitebrant as matron of honor, wore gowns of similar mode, but of shades of pale pink tulle, and they, too, carried old fashioned bouquets.

Mrs. Gray, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in ivory tulle with white lace, while Mrs. Kraft, mother of the groom, wore an elegant gown of white satin and lace.

The best man was Kenneth Archer of this city. The ushers were Harry G. Dashbells of Smithfield, Virginia, D. M. Wadley of Richmond, Virginia, Jansen A. McIntee of Akron, Ohio, classmates of the groom at Virginia Military Institute, Roger Hall Loughran of this city and Daniel Herrick of Boston, Mass., formerly of Kingston. The ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. T. H. Baragwanath, pastor of the church, was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gray, there being some two hundred guests in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Kraft left town during the evening for Virginia, where they will spend their honeymoon. Among the out of town guests were Miss Marie Overstreet, New York city; Miss Avrina Pugh, Racine, Wisconsin; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wawter of Evanston, Illinois; the Hon. and Mrs. John C. Birdseye of Albany; ex-Senator and Mrs. Walter C. Burton of Brooklyn, Judge and Mrs. Alton B. Parker of Esopus; Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Moore of Elizabeth, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Leo De Bell of Pompton Lake, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Nalle of City Point, Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse P. Mills of Poughkeepsie and Mrs. M. Robinson of Martinsburgh, West Virginia.

Quick Wit On the Stage.

Richard Mansfield created the role of Beau Brummel. W. J. Ferguson acted the valet in the original production in the character of the valet it was Ferguson's place to hand the Beau his gloves, his stick and finally his hat. Upon the opening night he proffered the hat to Mansfield, turned the wrong way around. Had the Beau put on the hat in the way it was handed to him and strolled down Piccadilly or Bond street the faux pas might have created a scandal. When Ferguson discovered his error he turned pale under his makeup.

Mansfield was quick to grasp the situation and with one of his most courtly bows gave the hat back to the valet so that he might turn it around on his head. Ferguson did with pantomimic apology.

As Mansfield put on the hat and passed out of the door he whispered to Ferguson, "That's a good piece of business. Keep it in."—New York Telegraph.

Where Women Rule.

Near the Cape of Shima, in Japan, there is a village the name of which in Japanese means "The Settlement of Nymphs." Woman in this village is the predominant partner. The chief industry is pearl fishing, and it is the women who are the fishers. The men stay at home and do the housework.

Value of a Name.

"What's in a name?" asked the man who indulges in quotations. "That question," replied Mr. Cumrox, "shows your unfamiliarity with art. It is evident that you never paid the extra charge for the signature on an oil painting."—Washington Star.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Bed Sores.

During a long illness in bed the pressure upon the surface of the body is steady, and unless various parts are subjected to pressure bed sores will form from too long continued pressure upon one part. The aged are more liable to have bed sores than younger persons. Those suffering from paralysis are the greatest of all sufferers. It is important to keep the sheet smooth under the patient. A ridge in the sheet will rub a sore into the skin made tender by lying so long in the recumbent position. If the patient is heavy it is not necessary to lift him. Roll him over or ease him up with a pillow three or four times a day. An air cushion is a great protection against bed sores, as well as a resting place for the tired, fretted skin. All parts exposed to pressure should be bathed with alcohol several times a day. When this has dried dust the locality with talcum powder.

TUBERCULOSIS REPORTS DISAGREE

Sensational Report Made by Miss Betz Found to Contain Names of 25 Persons Dead When it was Made—Preventive Work to be Pushed.

Wednesday evening the annual meeting of the Ulster County Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis was held in the Board of Health room at the City Hall, the meeting being presided over by the president, the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler. In addition to listening to annual reports, further plans for actual preventive work by the visiting nurse were considered, and officers for the ensuing year were elected.

The annual report of the secretary, as read, was as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Committee—

During the past year, a survey has been made of conditions in city and county. Miss Lydia E. Betz was employed to do this, and her report was startling, as she reported finding, in all, 614 people sick with tuberculosis. This number included suspected cases as well as positive cases, the latter number reported being 431. One very important point made by Miss Betz, was that she took the death record and then went to the homes where persons had lived and died, and there found living tuberculosis patients. Last October, it was decided to run the Christmas Seal Sale on a larger scale than had been done previously. The secretary was authorized to make all arrangements for the same. It was found impossible to carry on the sale according to a mail plan without a paid worker. Fred Avery was sent here by the State Charities' Aid Association to do the work, the committee hearing the expense. In the letters sent out, it was distinctly stated that if the money was secured a visiting nurse would be kept working in the city and county. The total net results of the seal sale were $1,733.54. Miss Betz met with a severe accident which disqualified her for service, and she sent in her resignation, which was accepted at the May meeting. At that time, Drs. Gates, O'Meara and Day and Health Officer Dr. Johnston were appointed a committee to secure another nurse. It was requested that the board of health and the board of managers of the Tuberculosis Hospital make the new nurse an unpaid attaché of their respective bodies, thereby hoping to increase her efficiency. The committee was empowered to supervise the work of the nurse and she was to be directly responsible to them, they in turn becoming responsible to the general committee for the faithful performance of her duties.

Dr. Brown, field agent for the State Charities' Aid Association, was present at that May meeting, and spoke of various methods for enlarging the work, dwelling especially upon the need of securing an adequate number of hospital beds for the number of tuberculosis patients, needing hospital care in this county.

Miss Anna O'Shea, R. N., was secured by the above-mentioned committee as visiting nurse, and has been working the past month.

Mrs. Reed has reported that the piano which was purchased through her efforts, on the installment plan of E. Winter's Sons, has been paid for in full, the receipt for the same, together with a list of donors to the purchase fund, having been sent to President Fowler.

Through the efforts of Miss Oucheltree, who engineers these cake sales, together with other money donations, a fine Victrola has been secured for the hospital. Many records have been since donated.

In the name of the committee, I wish to thank the public for the generous response to the Red Cross Christmas Seal Sale, and for the many donations of every kind and for the interest shown in the work the past year.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) MARY GAGE-DAY,
Secretary.

Cornelius Hume next gave the annual report of the treasurer, which showed a balance on hand, June 24, 1915, of $1,404.82. Additional receipts, including the funds derived from the Christmas Seal Sale, etc., brought the total receipts up to $3,654.09. The year's disbursements, including the salary of visiting nurse, purchase of lot, etc., amounted to $1619.20, leaving a present balance on hand of $2,034.89. Both reports were accepted.

Miss O'Shea, visiting nurse, then made her report which stated that she had made 67 inspections during the month of May, which included 41 houses visited. Of the present living cases, the following have been reported to the board of health: at home 54; at Tuberculosis camp, 22; at Raybrook, 2; at Liberty, 1; out of state, 4; out of county, 1; discharged as cured, 2; total 86. Cases reported from other sources, yet to be investigated, 75. The report stated that 84 per cent of the cases reported previously are found to be dead, 25 of the names included in that report having been dead at the time of making the report.

This report of Miss O'Shea's showing the discrepancies between actual conditions as she finds them, here in the city, for she has not yet gone out into the county, and as they were reported by Miss Betz, caused much discussion. As Miss Betz came to the committee very highly recommended and the discrepancies are of such an unusual character, and Miss Betz is not present to explain the same, it was finally decided that the best way for the committee to carry out its avowed purpose of existence, that of prevention of tuberculosis, would be for Miss O'Shea to continue her visiting work, which includes actual nursing and the giving of instruction and help, making a correct statistical report as she goes. Such a report will in time be published and will then show accurate conditions to date. Necessary, as statistics are regarding tuberculosis conditions in the city and county, the preventive care of actual cases comes first according to the judgment of the committee, and through such care, the other matter will normally be rectified.

Dr. O'Meara of the committee on hospital and camp, reported the work going on as usual.

A question of legislation was next brought up, there being legislative action pending whereby the Federal government shall become responsible for the maintenance of tuberculosis patients, who having moved from one state to another and have to be cared for at public expense, a maximum sum for such care being stated. It was moved that the president, Mr. Fowler and Dr. O'Meara be appointed a committee to write our congressman relative to the approval of such a bill by this committee.

After careful discussion, it was also voted that Dr. Gates be empowered to look after such repainting of the interior of the camp, as is necessary for the cheerful appearance and protection of the property.

In view of the extensive and inaccessible geographical conditions of Ulster county, the question came up as to the advisability of securing a run-about auto, for the use of the visiting nurse and at the hospital. Dr. O'Meara, the Rev. Mr. Ellis and the Rev. Father Hickey, were appointed to ascertain the relative cost of such transportation as compared with that of railroad, horse and wagon and trolley conveyance, including the cost of maintenance and upkeep as well as initial cost, and were asked to report back to the executive committee. It found advisable, some plan would be formed for raising necessary funds, as no draft would be made on the treasury. This brought to a close the transaction of business other than the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler; vice-presidents, the Rev. John J. Hickey, Sam Bernstein, Mrs. Clara N. Reed, Rev. John H. Brady, Rev. Charles G. Ellis; secretary, Dr. Mary Gage Day; treasurer, Cornelius Hume. Sub-committee chairmen were appointed as follows: Committee on Legislation and Municipal Regulation, Philip Elting; publicity, J. E. Canfield; hospital and camp, Dr. A. C. Gates; dispensary, class and visiting nurse, Dr. Mark O'Meara. The meeting adjourned after the election of officers.

TO PURSUE BANDITS ACROSS THE BORDER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Tex., June 15.—General Funston at noon today gave General Mann, district commander at Laredo, authority to take any steps he sees fit to pursue and punish the bandits who attacked Troops I and M of the 14th Cavalry at San Ignacio early today, killing two Americans soldiers and wounding seven others, one of whom since died.

This instruction will probably mean that another punitive expedition—the third—will be sent into Mexico.

Two more of the wounded are expected to die.

Eight of the bandits are reported captured.

Col. R. A. Brown, commander at Fort McIntosh, instructed county officers to advise all people on ranches between Laredo and San Ignacio to get into the interior, fearing trouble, according to advices received here.

Major Gray reported that he was in communication with Carranza troops on the Mexican side, and they stated they were in pursuit of the raiders, had overtaken one band and killed four of them.

General Mann, commanding at Laredo, forwarded the report of the battle to General Funston. The fight lasted about half an hour. The Americans under Major Gray were surprised by the Mexicans but succeeded after a brisk battle in dispersing the bands, which scattered in several directions.

G.A. HART & CO.
KINGSTON, N.Y.

MRS. SHEPARD MAY ADOPT ANOTHER LITTLE GIRL AND BOY.

New York, June 15.—It is believed that Mrs. Finley Shepard, the former Helen Miller Gould, is about to adopt two children, a boy and girl, to keep Finley J. Shepard, Jr., known as "John Doe 104," before his adoption by Mr. and Mrs. Shepard, company.

Helen "Doe" and Louis "Doe," who are now on probation at Lyndhurst, the Shepard estate at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, may soon be known as Helen and Louis Shepard.

Ways of the Burman.
The Burmese are a fascinating people. Unlike the native of India, a Burman can laugh and enjoy a joke. I have seen a native of India smile. I have never seen one laugh, whereas the whole idea of the Burmese, as a race, would appear to be to enjoy themselves and make the best of a short life and try to make it a happy one. The men are sportsmen, and if they are lucky enough to make money they spend it. Their chief amusements are horse, or, rather, pony, racing, cock-fighting and gambling, and they will back their fancy with their last coin. On the other hand, they are lazy and indolent and as soldiers or policemen utterly untrustworthy, but brave and fearless of death.—From "And That Reminds Me."

Mimics Among Birds.
Birds, from the ostrich down, are imitative. The ostrich, where he lives alone, is silent, but in a country where lions abound he roars. Why? Because for centuries, admiring the lion's roar, he gradually learned to roar himself. Among small birds, buntings imitate plovers, and greenfinches imitate yellowhammers. They seek their food in the winter together, and they gradually steal each other's calls. The jay is an insatiable imitator. Some jays will include in their repertory not only the cries of songs of other birds, but also the bleat of the lamb and the neigh of a horse. Even the nightingale imitates. In a nightingale's song it is sometimes quite easy to detect phrases he has borrowed from other birds.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, June 15.—Dr. and Mrs. G. S. LaMoree have returned home from their visit in Baltimore and Arlington, N. J., where they spent several weeks with their children, the Rev. and Mrs. Wilcox and Mr. and Mrs. Coombs.

Mrs. J. C. Dedrick spent several days in New York city. She will return in time for the boat races.

Miss Carrie and Mena Gillman of Poughkeepsie were callers on friends in town Wednesday afternoon.

Capt. R. H. Decker was a business caller in Poughkeepsie Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller had guests from Kingston this week.

The crews are practicing daily for the great races to take place Saturday. It is hoped that good weather may favor them for crowds of people are expected, and are already beginning to arrive.

Epworth League held their business and social meeting last Friday evening in the church parlor, and as usual had a pleasant time.

Mrs. B. B. Harper of Clintondale has been spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell on White street.

Mr. and Mrs. Le Grand Haviland of Vineyard avenue have had as their guest Mr. Haviland, Sr., of Marlborough for a short time.

Mrs. Mary Adams entertained her brother, Charles Beaver, of Esopus, recently.

Miss Ethel Wilcox, a teacher from New York, has been home for a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wilcox. As the Jewish holiday festival took place last week she was exempt from teaching at that time, and improved the few days for recreation in the country, and the inclement weather made it rather unpleasant for her, as it necessitated remaining in doors to a certain extent.

Sunday school state convention opened in Albany Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Metcalf, also Mr. and Mrs. Silliman of the M. E. Church were delegates. They left here Tuesday morning on the early train, and will remain through the entire convention. We presume there will be some lively debates, for many of the speakers will have history and experience in Sunday school work, and we know the superintendent from the M. E. Church will return filled with new interest that will make itself felt in work of the school.

The people in this place were shocked to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. Mary Adams Tuesday afternoon. She had been out on the streets and in stores and seemed to feel in good spirits. She was highly respected and esteemed by a wide circle of friends in the community where she had resided for a number of years. She leaves many relatives to mourn her loss, who extend heartfelt sympathy to the family in this their hour of great bereavement.

Children's Day, celebration, at M. E. Church last Sunday, was one long to be remembered by little folks, and big ones also. Every one was anxious to know what the clerk of the weather was going to do, and one thing positive, he sent rain and with that starting one in the face it did not seem to daunt the Methodist people, for all knew what it meant to go to Methodist Church on the day of all days—Children's Day; and this was no exception. It was a busy day with several sessions to handle, and it wound up in a blaze of glory. At night the church being the largest by far of any in town, was packed for both services. Memory has marked in red letters, Children's Day. Among the Methodist people it is always very distinct and shines like brilliant gems to dazzle all eyes. The infant class, which is very large, under the leadership of Miss Laura Palmer, with Miss Mamie Davis as assistant, went through their exercises beautifully. There was also a fine flag drill by a class of girls and boys; also another class gave a flower drill. These were executed very nicely, and all who took part in the program performed their respective numbers in a most creditable manner. The church was never more beautiful, with floral decorations, than this year. The aisles were graced with arches wound with flat cedar and daisies. The altar was decorated with ferns, wiggles and other flowers; choir-loft banked and massive forms and baskets, also jardinières filled with flowers made it a bower of beauty. The Sunday school marched, in led by the pastor, the Rev. J. C. Coddington, and Superintendent F. L. Metcalf. They charmed every one as they marched, all panned beautifully and the music was never better selected or arranged with pipe organ and orchestra, and the excellent expression and spirit of the singers was remarkable. In the evening several of the Syracuse boys added to the service by a male quartet and they also sang several of Billy Sunday's famous pieces and had their own orchestra, which was greatly enjoyed and appreciated. The most interesting music of the evening was the soprano solo, sang by Miss Whitley of New York city, who has been in voice study, under a prominent instructor, for over two years. She had a sweet voice and every word could be heard distinctly. She loves to sing and her voice has great strength. Her share of the program was a great delight to the audience and with Mrs. Kelsey Staples, organist and accompanist, who is considered a fine one, for she really seems gifted in that direction, the music was a great success. H. E. Wilcox, the choir director, who had charge of the rehearsal, deserves a permanent place among the musical people and has good reason to feel proud of the goodly numbers and excellent talent found in the progressive Sunday school and choir of M. E. Church. The pastor, the Rev. J. C. Coddington, gave a few minutes talk on Courage, Perseverance and Victory, and every word gave evidence that those who have these three grand thoughts in their minds and life are people to be admired, are women and men of might; the courageous win where others fail and perseverance knows no sacrifice too great to make, no duty too taxing, and failure they never know. Then when the battle is on, victory is won. This was a day showing where there is unity all can be drawn together for true work and increased efficiency in greater church service.

Harold Upright was in New York city Monday.

Philip Schantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loria Schantz, has returned to his home here for his summer vacation. He is looking fine. Study at college seems to agree with him.

Ladies' Auxiliary met last Friday, at the home of Mrs. C. J. Elting, 101 Miller avenue, where she, with Mrs. H. D. Elting, and Mrs. George Eyett, were the ones who dispensed good cheer, to the large delegation of members and several visitors, also one new member admitted to the club, Mrs. A. Sanderson. The hospitality of the hostesses was greatly appreciated. The president opened the meeting with cordial greetings to members and guests, making all feel glad to belong to this famous club. Reports from social, visiting, Sunshine and house committees were submitted for approval and were satisfactory. Letters were read from people who had been remembered with flowers, which gave evidence of their great appreciation of the kind thoughts of the members. Cheering and gratifying indeed are the conditions and prospects of the club, and the church has reason to congratulate themselves upon the prosperity of the auxiliary club, and every meeting brings its full share of good will. A great deal of business was transacted, after which the motion to adjourn came before the house. After its disposal, then came a social time, when the three ladies served delicious refreshments which were greatly enjoyed. At the next meeting in July, election of officers will be held. Members expressed their hearty and sincere appreciation of the afternoon pleasure given by Mrs. C. J. and Mrs. H. D. Elting, and Mrs. Eyett and left for their homes with pleasant memories of the past year's work.

We understand Postmaster Clearwater will soon vacate the office, for his successor. He has made a fine official, and one thing positive he was always found at his post of duty, and was always courteous and kind, which the public greatly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Albertson have sold their property on North road and will soon leave country life for pleasures of the city. They have been residents of this place for several years.

June 24th Maud Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Morris of Milton avenue, will be married to Mr. Rowell. Press extends congratulations.

George Pratt had the misfortune to have his auto skid around curve on state road and strike a berry-picker, who was rushed to Poughkeepsie with a broken leg.

Jacob Schulte of this place was married to Miss Harris of Marlborough last Saturday morning. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Robert Knapp at the M. E. parsonage in Marlborough. They will reside in this place.

Home grown strawberries are now making their appearance, much to the delight of everyone, for their flavor and the size of the berries is so much better in every way than those from the south. The cloudy and rainy weather is not very much appreciated by the growers.

Queen Esther Circle held a banquet in the M. E. Church parlors on Monday evening, to which only their members were invited. They have 39 members. We were informed nearly all were present. They held a business meeting and elected officers for the ensuing year. Miss Hattie Dickinson was elected president. They enjoyed their spread immensely and had a grand social time.

Mrs. L. K. Malloch has returned home after spending a week very delightfully with relatives in Mount Vernon.

Mrs. James S. Mack has several guests at her attractive place, "Hillair," and expects many more for the college crews' races.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

KINGBIRD

(Tyrannus tyrannus)

Length, about eight and one-half inches. The white lower surface and white-tipped tail distinguish this flycatcher.

Range: Breeds throughout the United States (except the southwestern part) and southern Canada; winters from Mexico to South America.

Habits and economic status: The kingbird is a pronounced enemy of hawks and crows, which it vigorously attacks at every opportunity, thereby affording efficient protection to nearby poultry yards and young chickens at large. It loves the open country and is especially fond of orchards and trees about farm buildings. No less than 85 per cent of its food consists of insects, mostly of a harmful nature. It eats the common rose chafer or rose bug, and more remarkable still it devours blister beetles freely.

The bird has been accused of eating honeybees to an injurious extent, but there is little ground for the accusation, as appears from the fact that examination of 634 stomachs showed only 61 bees in 22 stomachs. Of these 51 were useless drones. On the other hand, it devours robber flies, which catch and destroy honeybees. Grasshoppers and crickets, with a few bugs and some outcrops, and a few other insects, make up the rest of the animal food. The vegetable food consists of fruit and a few seeds. The kingbird deserves full protection.

That much-advertised "keynote" speech of Martin H. Glynn's was not much of a success. The New York Times, which is a warm supporter of Wilson, has the honesty to report that the Democratic leaders declare that the address was "an appeal to the cowardice of prosperity," that "it was not a keynote, but an alibi," that it was a declaration that "we are too fat to fight," and so on. The same paper continues with the assertion that the speech "has utterly demoralized the carefully worked out program of putting the Democratic party in the field as the truly American party." Mr. Glynn put too much emphasis upon the alleged great service of the President in keeping the country out of war, and had too little to say about the fact that American prestige has been impaired to such an extent as to make it unsafe for our citizens to travel about the world on errands of business and pleasure. It is very interesting to read that many of our Presidents, from Washington down, refrained from going to war in the face of great provocation, but the fact remains that under all our Presidents except Wilson the world has been asked to respect American citizenship. However, Mr. Glynn did about as well as anybody could do under such embarrassing circumstances. It is pretty hard to say much that is convincing in favor of a party which has proved that it regards its platform pledges as mere "scraps of paper" having no other purpose than the deception of voters.

You can take your Americanism straight, or with a cherry, or any way you like it this campaign. Mr. Hughes offers an old-fashioned, undiluted Americanism in place of the synthetic variety which President Wilson has seen fit to style Internationalism and which thus far has not attained any great degree of popularity. Internationalism was originally copyrighted by the Socialists in Europe and at home, but these supposedly stalwart believers finally marched off to do battle for Nationalism in their respective countries, and abandoned the international issue on which the Democrats have now seized as a campaign issue for 1917. It is a peculiar proposition, this Internationalism, and the general haziness as to the exact meaning and extent of the doctrine will, doubtless, win for it many unthinking converts of the pacifist type. Somehow it sounds suspiciously like the Free Silver issue, or the New Freedom of 1912, a sort of Sixteen-to-One diplomacy as it were. Habitual American caution, reinforced by the utterances of the Father of His Country on the subject of entangling foreign relations, will assure a most thorough repudiation of this millennial doctrine at the polls. Until we can deal successfully with the Mexican problem, and strengthen the Monroe Doctrine in its application to affairs on this hemisphere, the country cannot take up any visionary program with respect to our relations with the other side of the world.

Gasoline and the Standard Oil octopus were given a clean bill of health before the Federal Trade Commission inquiry at Washington Tuesday at which predictions were made of a drop in price because of the discovery of new oil wells. T. J. James, a secretary to the Kansas and Oklahoma Refiners' Association, was the expert who exonerated the Standard, stating that the conditions of the oil market were the cause of the upward tendency in price. The independents, according to this authority, now control about the same percentage of crude oil fields as does the so-called trust. One of the odd reasons advanced for the former prices of crude oil was the government requirement that lessees of oil lands owned by Indians in Oklahoma must do a certain amount of drilling to hold their leases. This almost continuous drilling by lease-holders caused an overproduction of crude oil and worked a hardship on the oil industry, according to James, but he did not explain why this did not cause a drop in prices some months ago. There are many peculiar features about this inquiry into gasoline prices and the failure of all explanations to explain the real reasons for the weird shifts in prices is the most peculiar of them all.

Norman E. Mack started a fashion which will enjoy a brief popularity.

He rushed into print with a series of questions which he demanded that Candidate Hughes answer. Now a chap named Harris, who seems to be the Mack of Missouri, pops some more questions which are supposed to be crushers. Other Democrats will follow suit as fast as they can attract the attention of reporters. Mr. Hughes has not yet answered these inquisitors. Doubtless he regards them as too small fry. Eight years ago, when Mr. Hughes was running for Governor of this state, his opponent, Mr. Chandler, addressed to him a series of questions which Hughes answered in a way which made Chandler a laughing-stock. Mack has a memory and if something happens to him he cannot avail himself of the excuse that he didn't know it was loaded.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Why in the world did you name you baby Bill?" "Because he came on the first of the month."—Brownie's Magazine.
"The dentist told me I had a large cavity that needed filling." "Did he recommend any special course of study?"—Puck.
"Auntie, can you change a dime for me?" "How do you want it changed, dear?" "Into a quarter, please."—Boston Transcript.
Vestryman—"Sometimes I fear that Christianity is a failure." Daughter—"What's the matter, Dad? Oh, don't say the new curate has left!"—Life.
"We need a brave man for the presidency of the United States." "You needn't be worried about that," interrupted Senator Sorghum. "Any man who undertakes to run for the office these days has got to be a brave man to start with."—Washington Star.

Kitchener's Humor.

Although of Irish descent, Kitchener of Khartum was credited with having about as much humor as the Sphinx. But many are the stories told about him in which he usually scored with some remark as grim and as heavy as himself. One of the most recent relates to the captain of a Home Defense company, who had dug some trenches and drilled his men after the German bombardment of Whitby and Scarborough. Kitchener happened to be in the neighborhood, and the captain succeeded in getting him to inspect his "fortifications" and look over his men. At last, the inspection over the captain turned to K. of K. and inquired:
"Should the Germans come, what uniforms should we wear?"
"The war secretary's eyes snapped. 'The ones you want to be buried in,' he said as he turned away."

Work His Recreation.

An officer who had campaigned in Egypt and South Africa with the general was asked one day, "How does Lord Kitchener spend his time?"
"He works."
"But I mean how does he amuse himself?"
"By more work."
"Has he no recreations?"
"Yes, two. Still more work and seeing that everybody around him works."
It was a hard-worked staff, the staff that served under "K." and it isn't often that its members had time for a good hearty chuckle. But once in a long time the war office "slipped one over" on Lord Kitchener by sending the son of an earl or a duke or some other high personage to serve as an addition to his staff. Such men, unless they had proved themselves first, never got there. If Kitchener heard anything about it beforehand, one young officer arrived and reported. The interview was short and—to him—painful. The conversation landed:
Young Officer—I haven't looked it up, sir.
Kitchener—You look it up— you sail on that steamer.
Young officer gasps.
Kitchener—Good day, sir.
Young Officer—But I—
Kitchener—I said good day, sir.

A Wrong Diagnosis.

Kitchener—Do you know when the next steamer sails for England?
On one occasion a sick man had been sent out on duty by the camp physician, who declared him to be malingering. Kitchener found the man complaining, and called in two other physicians. They reported the soldier suffering from typhoid fever. Kitchener called in the surgeon who had something like this:
"Take this man to the hospital," he ordered, "and yourself to England."

Interviewing K. of K.

An American newspaper correspondent had an interview with Kitchener before the Battle of Omdurman.
"I had a cable message from my paper," he said, relating the experience, "the night before the battle instructing me to get an interview with Kitchener, ask him for his plan of attack on the Mahdi's forces, and rush it through. It was some distance from our position in the rear to headquarters, and the only animal I could get to ride across the stretch of sand was a donkey, so small that I had almost to carry it part of the journey."
"Riding between high sandbanks, the animal suddenly doubled up and went down on his knees, throwing me over his head. Before I could get up, I heard a voice exclaim: 'What the devil's this?' Sure enough, it was Kitchener himself and I got my interview with him on the spot. He said: 'Get out of the damned road!'"

SUFFS AND ANTIS BEFORE COMMITTEE

All the Way From Paris Fashion
Hints to Charlie Murphy in Skirts
Ranged the Costumes of Those Who Spoke.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—Dangling ninety-one electoral votes in twelve states, which can be thrown one way or the other by 6.7 per cent of the voting population, three groups of suffrage women are making the prettiest fight in the long story of woman's struggle for the ballot before the platform committee of the Democratic party.
On the one hand they offer a promise of leading the party to the pot of gold at the end of the political rainbow.
On the other hand they offer a threat of pulling down the temple of western states upon a recalcitrant Democracy. It, indeed, it shall so prove in the eyes of the women.

The fight broke in all of its picturesque effect before the session of the platform committee that ended today the first round of the struggle over the code of principles upon which Democracy is going before the people. But this is no story of the party creed, save insofar as it applies purely to women. It is a narrative of the invasion made by the women upon the wise men of the political body and of the clashing of wits, minds, superimposed upon skirts and frills, to the adding of a page of unusual interest to the history of woman and the vote.
The committee had wrestled with labor. The arena was cleared for a long, running fight, in which were the lineal descendants of those women who once in mythology conquered mere man in the far off regions of the east.

Chairman Stone opened the doors to the women and bade them tell by what charms, what conjurations and what mighty magic they hoped to win the ballot. The vote seekers built their structure upon a flood of able and interesting opposition. It came from the representatives of the woman's anti-suffrage association.

Reversing the procedure of the common law, the opposition got the first blow over the voiced and defenseless protest of James R. Nugent of New Jersey. He wanted the anti-suffragists to have the closing say. For the anti-suffragists came first Mrs. Arthur Dodge, a dashing matron, wearing a modish gown and the air of one who owns a conviction and has not the slightest trepidation in presenting it to public view. Her plume, set high on the Cossack-like creation, nodded defiance to her militant sisters.

"We represent the organized women in this country opposing woman suffrage," she said. "The organization is made in twenty-four states, five of which are in the south. We represent the great majority of the women who are silent on the subject of suffrage."

"Our motto has been 'Home and humanity' to which, recently, in this troublesome time we have added the words 'America first!'"

"We want the men who come from the great states that have recently voted down suffrage to represent the women on this committee," she said.
She gave way to Mrs. George, the stately Massachusetts leader of the anti-suffragists, who threw in the first fight-licks against the cause. Mrs. George, clad in white and wearing a picture hat, sent her perfectly poised shafts straight at the mark.

"We protest," she began, "against a thing that the president of the United States said had no place in the party platform and should not be covered by any national legislation. We do not come before you dressed as slaves, wearing chains, because we have no vote. The question as to what persons should vote in any particular state should be left to the voters of that particular state. We come with neither threats nor promises, for you will have plenty of threats and promises in the next half hour. You will be told that there are 4,000,000 women who will vote against you. Don't you believe them."
"They haven't even got a woman's party for suffrage."
"They are going to talk to you in three detachments because they can't get together even on the question of suffrage."
"The only states where the Democratic party made gains in the last election were states where the women were refused votes by the men. They formed their blacklist, and on it they placed the name of Oscar W. Underwood who was elected to the senate, and he is doing giant work for his party. Jefferson said 'The need for women is to have protection rather than direction in government.' In eight months six states having a large percentage of the electoral vote have said that women shall not vote."

So much for the anti-suffragists.
Then that interesting cornerstone was built the fastest and most entertaining fact that the women have made before a platform committee in favor of suffrage. A bright yellow cash, bearing the legend "Votes for women" flashed before the committee. It was hung across the dressing figure of a militant speaker introduced as Mrs. Gordon of Louisiana. She wore black and presented a stunning appearance.

"The southern women," she said, "are before the Dixie representatives, 'Vote as the political inferiors to the negro.'"
That made the delegates sit up and take notice.
Evidently the lady was out to speak her mind without the slightest mental veneer.
"Women are merely in the subject class," she went on. "The strongest indictment against our government of today is that women are maintained in the subject class. The women of this country are going to the party that gives them the most recognition. We all recognize the allegiance that the negro gives to the party that gave him liberty; is it reasonable to suppose that women will be any less grateful to the party that gives them liberty?"

A cheer went around, joined in by the delegates and women of all classes. Some of them looked like the daily fashion hint from Paris, and one front rank citizeness resembled Charlie Murphy as he would appear in skirts.
Mrs. Gordon took up the industrial situation in the south and warned the delegates that the women of the west could not be expected to come to the south and take part in the development of the country unless they were permitted to have the same say in government that they had in the west.
A real breeze blew into the fight. Miss Anne Martin, a dapper, dashing little person, clad in a Fain Beach suit and carrying humor and snap that was infectious, had the crowd with her from the start.
"We have four speakers," she said. "And they are only going to get four minutes each to talk. We appeared before the Republicans in Chicago, but we appeared before them as the minority party. We appear before you as the majority party."
"Your party is the only power in existence that can put the suffrage amendment on the books for us. We women are preparing to hold the majority party responsible for the result of the women's issue."
"We can carry twelve states with the control of ninety-one electoral votes."
"Is it worth your while to try and win this vote?"
She then introduced Miss Maud Younger of Idaho who wasn't in any friendly frame of mind toward persons who stand between the woman and the ballot box. She plainly told the committee that in California, Wyoming, Idaho and Illinois 6.7 per cent of the voting population would turn the scale in any election and cited figures to show how closely the parties ran. She said that the women could throw these states any way they wanted to, and that they would surely be thrown against the Democrats if they did not come to the scratch-line with some pronouncement in favor of equal suffrage.
Mrs. Sarah M. Field, a dainty little woman dressed like a girl and owning a twinkling eye that caught and held the men, made the brightest talk of the session. She put her ideas over with a talent that would have made a fortune on a "two-a-day" circuit.
"I don't want to tell you what will happen if you don't do things," she said, with rare tact. "I want to tell you what will happen if you do. The women don't belong to any particular party. They are going to support the party that supports them. You are going to do that. I have fought through three suffrage campaigns and know my coast from end to end."
"You have got the south and nothing that you are going to do can make the south Republican."
The delegates laughed.
"Once a negro was plowing in the sun in the middle of the summer. The rays beat down on his head with great force and he shook his fist at the shining orb and called, 'Where was you last December when we needed you?' Don't let us have to ask you that question."

Mrs. Carr, a Miss Mary Foy, a delegate to the convention from California, who made a hit by confessing, as she took a drink of water, that she "had a real Democratic thirst." Then she made a hot argument for votes and excused herself to go out and sit with the committee on credentials "to judge which man should have a seat in the convention tomorrow."
Mrs. T. W. Harris of Kansas, Miss Leonora Downs, who spoke as a Democrat who intended to work for the party anyway, and Mrs. Catt all spoke and the committee took the offered planks for further consideration.

June 15, 1896.—Death of Melcher Fischbach, aged 78 years.
Rev. J. J. Reed preached sermon to Knights of Pythias.
Thomas F. Kelly sentenced to seven years in Dannemora, secured a stay.
John N. Cordts Hose Company incorporated with 46 members.
Uptown fire companies up in arms over question of whether Tri-County parade should form at city hall as planned or in Rondout, and finally adjusted by deciding to form parade at city hall. Was talk of holding two parades if matter had not been settled amicably.

June 15, 1906.—Rondout Social Mannerchor attended formal opening of Hotel Kaiserhof at Rhinecliff.

1,212 new street signs ordered.
William Smith and James Harney, two young boys, fined $1 each for swimming in Rondout creek without donning trunks.
John DuBois, well known carriage-maker, died at his home on Franklin street.

James J. Brink appointed elderman to succeed James S. Winne, resigned.

FISH DINNERS are one of the first feasts that is thought of by the vacationist when he goes out for a holiday. The individual who can get to a seashore does not feel that the outing has been complete without a shore dinner. The camper who goes to the mountain does not feel that his outing has been complete unless he has been able to catch enough FISH in the rivers or lakes to have a FISH dinner. Take even the small boy, the first thing he thinks of at vacation time is to go fishing so that he may have the pleasure of a change of diet such as fresh FISH. It is not always the sport of catching the FISH that creates this desire but it certainly is the call of nature for a change of diet, and nothing is more pleasant than FISH, which is

MOHONK WINS AGAIN.

Holds Eastman Business College
Down to One Run.

Mohonk Lake, June 14.—A bad get-away by Lotz, pitching for Eastman's Business College here today enabled Mohonk to score three runs in the first inning on a base on balls and four hits. After that neither side could accumulate more than one lone run, the final score being 4 to 1. Womble's fielding was a feature. Owl pitched a steady game throughout, being especially strong in the pinches. Lotz pitched a good article of ball after the first inning.

Important to Education.

The most important part of education is the training of the senses which, besides supplying the faculty of accurate observation, creates the habit of careful reflection and measured reasoning. The boys on the farms, no less than those who are being trained in the trades, acquire extensive development of the senses. The advent of mechanical power and machinery, however, has impaired this development.—President Charles W. Elliot.

SENATOR THOMAS TAGGART.
TOM TAGGART AT ST. LOUIS CONVENTION MINUS MUSTACHE.
(Tom Taggart, Photographed in St. Louis.)

Senator Thomas Taggart, of Indiana, the best known Democratic political leader of that state, "put one over" on the cartoonists and photographers at St. Louis for a time. Senator Taggart arrived in St. Louis minus his mustache which had been one of his distinguishing features. The pencil wielders and camera men failed to recognize him for a time, but friends of the Senator obligingly pointed him out later.

Brought a Sample With Her.

The tobaccoist watched her outside his shop window. For fully half an hour she stood there gazing through the panes. Then she came in. She fumbled and fussed, and at length brought forth a little packet. This she carefully undid till, finally, a small stub end came to view. The tobaccoist raised his eyebrows inquiringly. "Good afternoon," said the lady, holding up the stub end gingerly for inspection. "Here is a remnant of one of my husband's special cigars. Have you anything to match it?"

SUFFRAGETTES MEET AND TALK

The convention of the Ulster county suffragists opened this morning in the Wiltwyck Inn hall, on Main street, with about 40 "equal rights" believers in attendance. The opening session was held at 11 o'clock, and the time during the morning was taken up with discussing the issues of the campaign and making preparations to increase the strength of the party in the county. Mrs. Whitehouse, chairman of the New York State Woman Suffrage party, was in attendance at the session and discussed plans for the local organization.

Lunch was served the guests in the lunch room of the inn at 1 o'clock. At 2:30 the session was resumed and plans were again discussed for the good of "the cause." A delegation of out of town people were present. Mrs. Laidlaw of New York city was also expected to speak this afternoon.

A Japanese "Comic."

"After scanning a Japanese comic for a few minutes," says a writer in Cartoons Magazine, "one might conclude that the mystic Jap hasn't a greatly different viewpoint than other folks when his thoughts are immersed in the lighter things of life. Even the time honored, hoary jests of the papa row and his ever readiness to resent encroachments upon his fenced domain or peace of mind find places in the funny pages of Japan's publications, as they still do in ours. Quite a typical example of Japanese comic page material, and one which uses this very theme, is represented in a strip that appeared not long ago in Osaka Puck. Two characters are used—one a fellow of the Ople Dillcock type, and the other an ordinary everyday bull. The former finds it necessary to cross a bridgeless stream. Summoning his wits to his aid he seizes a rock and hurls it at the other's head. Then grabbing a plank and placing it across that part of his anatomy most logically open to attack, he faces the stream and awaits the impact. The force imparted by the enraged bull lifts him to the opposite bank in the twinkling of an eye. The line beneath the picture reads, 'Now I see that necessity makes invention.'"

In the Days Before Coal.

People sometimes wonder how their forefathers got on in the days before coal became the staple heater. They feared ill. Wood was the chief commodity in use, both in its natural state and as charcoal, the latter being prepared in the country and suburbs of London and brought into the city in carts, the chief marts for its sale being at Smithfield and Cornhill. By an enactment of Richard II. it was decreed that the price of charcoal should be fixed at tenpence per quarter from Michaelmas to Easter and eightpence per quarter during the remainder of the year, the regulation of its sale, as well as that of firewood, being committed to the mayor and aldermen. Among the poorer folk fern, reeds and stubble served as fuel, and quite a common method of keeping warm was to sit over pots filled with hot water.—London Chronicle.

In connection with the Children's Day exercises at the M. E. Church on Sunday evening, Miss Adelle Warner contributed a vocal solo which was well received by the large congregation present. The exercises were considered to be very good and the floral decorations of the church were very beautiful. The decorating committee were the boys of Mrs. Taylor's class and the girls of Mrs. Stratton's class, and notwithstanding inclement weather, the flowers were many and very beautiful. Another pleasing feature of the evening's service was a three verse song appropriate to the occasion, sung by a small tot, as the superintendent called her Baby Bunting. It fairly took the house down. The little miss is the youngest of ten daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bunting, residing on Park street. A liberal collection was taken, a benefit for educational purposes of the M. E. Church.

Be true to yourself and you do not need to worry about what the neighbors think.

Handsome Is That Handsome Doesn't.

The idea that handsome is that handsome does has caused so much trouble ever since it was first sprung upon an unsuspecting world that it is high time it is disposed of. In the first place, if you are really handsome, especially if you happen to be a girl, you don't have to do anything else. As a matter of fact, no beautiful girl ever does anything else. It isn't necessary for her to cook or sew or even talk. All she has to do is sit still and be loved, and the line usually forms on the right. If you do a thing, on the other hand, the mere fact that you have done it is supposed to insure your being handsome. What nonsense! If you do the handsome thing it will never be regarded as handsome by the only people whose opinion is worth while, because with them doing the handsome is so usual that it becomes commonplace. If you are homely nothing you do will be handsome.

To do a handsome thing, therefore, always start by being handsome. Then you won't have to do it.—Life.

A woman with a family of children recently moved from the heart of Indianapolis to one of the suburbs, where they found various new educational opportunities. ### The Word "Chap."

"Chap" is simply an abbreviation of chapman, the merchant of former days, and is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "cheap," a bargain. The word almost brings before us the loud voiced "cheap Jack" as he cries his wares in the cheaping or market. Chap seems to have come into common use at the end of the sixteenth century and is rarely mentioned in books before 1700. Johnson does not recognize it, though Steele uses it in 1712 in the Spectator ("If you want to sell, here is your chap"). It is found in Bailey's Dictionary, 1731. Its original meaning of a buyer or seller still lingers in the dialects of many counties. Coupled with the adjectives old, young, little, poor, it was and is used in familiar language, as is its relative, a queer "customer." Todd, 1818, affirms that a good chap meant one to whom credit might be given, whereas not qualified by good it was a term of contempt.—London Standard.

LOOK FOR THE GOOD.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—If the reported occupation of Ruanda, German East Africa, by Belgian troops from the Congo, and their establishment of a provisional government in this territory prove to be authentic, one of the richest colonial prizes of this world war has been won by the nation which has suffered most in Europe. Concerning this region, its people and its colonization possibilities, the following bulletin has been issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters:

"If Belgium is able to retain her hold on the Ruanda region of the German East African protectorate she will possess the most densely populated as well as one of the most fertile and salubrious territories of Central Africa.

"Ruanda lies to the east of Lake Kiwu, through which runs the boundary line between the Upper Congo region and the German possessions. To the north lies British East Africa. The Kagera river, also known as the Alexandra Nile, flowing in irregular S shape, east, north and emptying into Lake Victoria Nyanza, is the eastern boundary.

"While there are two considerable tracks of forest in Ruanda, the central portion of the territory is bare of trees, but on the mountain slopes there is to be found wonderfully rich grass, on which graze magnificent herds of cattle that constitute the chief wealth of the natives. The agricultural possibilities of the region are almost unlimited.

"One of the most striking advantages of this territory is its high altitude, an average of nearly a mile above sea level, so that although it lies under an equatorial sun, the temperature is usually about the same as that of a warm summer day in central Europe. Malarial mosquitoes are not known here, nor does the dread tsetse-fly hover over the land, bringing sleeping-sickness to human beings and quicker death to cattle.

"Two remarkable contrasts are to be found among the natives of this region. The highly developed, intelligent Watutsi are magnificent physical specimens, lithe, well-proportioned, and athletic. It is not uncommon to meet men from five feet eleven inches to seven feet two inches tall. On the other hand, on the island of Kwischwezi, in Lake Kiwu, and in the bamboo forest of Bugole the traveler finds the pygmy Batwa tribe, whose spear-carrying warriors are under five feet in height, shy, timid and devoted almost entirely to the chase. The aborigines belong to neither of these tribes, however, but are the Wahutu, a medium-sized, agricultural people. The black sultan of the region, one of the world's most powerful potentates ruling in territory held by white colonists, is a Wahutu.

His word, subject to the censorship of the European resident or governor, is law to a million and a half people.

"There is abundant water in Ruanda, the small mountain streams never running dry. When the grass becomes parched on the hillsides the natives burn it off and immediately there springs up fresh, tender pasture for the cattle.

"The beneficent salutation among friends is one of the interesting customs of the country. Upon meeting they either place their arms lightly upon the waist or else grasp each other's elbows, holding them for a while, then one declares 'I wish you cattle,' while the other replies, 'I wish you women.'

"This region was first explored in 1894 by Count von Goetzen, formerly governor of German East Africa, who came from the coast as far as Lake Kiwu, about which Arab traders had frequently brought vague reports. This beautiful, island-dotted body of water, 5,000 feet above sea level, was the last considerable lake to be discovered in Central Africa. Its outlet is the Rusizi river, which flows south into the famous Lake Tanganyika.

"One of the most noted parties of exploration which has visited Ruanda was that headed by Adolfus Frederick, Duke of Mecklenburg, who marched through the territory with an impressive retinue of carriers in 1907-8. In his report he said of this region: 'Ruanda is eminently adapted for colonization by white men. The country possesses a fabulous amount of wealth in its herds, to the breeding of which its pastoral people are particularly devoted. Also agriculture may be carried on in a remunerative way, for the quality of the cattle itself is as excellent as that of the milk they yield. As to the quality of the soil, it simply leaves nothing to be desired, so that it is evident that there is a splendid opening here for the establishment of business on a vast scale.'

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 15.—Fortune hasn't smiled with any real sweetness upon Joe Jackson. His achievements over the sweep of four campaigns were great enough to have caused him to be heralded as "the greatest player in the game." But Fate kept Ty Cobb in the frolic and Joe never has ranked better than a runner up.

Cobb has acted as an eclipse of Jackson's greatness. No matter what deeds Joe performed, Ty went just a bit beyond—just enough farther to cloud the brilliance of the "shoeless wonder."

Back in 1911, Joe's first full season as a major leaguer, he clubbed for the wonderful average of .498. In the entire 40 years history of the modern game, only about a dozen batters have gone beyond .400. It would seem that such a showing with the bludgeon must win the batting honors for the southern batting demon. But it didn't, because that was the year when Ty Cobb slugged to his record mark of .420—and Joe finished second.

The following season—1912—Jackson hit for .395—and Cobb again beat him to the wire with .410. No matter how well Joe performed, Ty's accomplishments were a bit superior. And Fate seems to have had a hand in it, because when Ty has slumped, a jinx has similarly afflicted Joe. Cobb hasn't been with Jackson. The "breaks" have gone to Cobb—all of them.

Cobb is Jackson's Nemesis.

In 1913 Jackson hit for .373—and Cobb went to .390. In 1914 Jackson dropped to .358 and Cobb to .368. Last season Cobb hit .370 while Joe's total was only .306. Had Joe amassed his .408 and .395 averages in any other years than 1911 or 1912 he would have acquired the honor of being the batting leader of the Johnson circuit. But fortune ruled that he should hit always below Cobb.

This season the same state of affairs exists. Joe never has been breezing along as merrily as of yore. If he finishes around .360 for the year he will be surprising many. Jackson has beaten that mark in three starts out of five. His grand average from 1911 to 1915 inclusive is .364. But now that the opportunity is before him, Joe doesn't seem to be able to grasp it. Ty isn't connecting with any degree of frequency—but Joe is hitting with lesser degree.

Five years a big league star; Five years of hitting for an average of .364; once of .408 hitter, but never the batting leader. That is Joe's history.

How He Became "Shoeless" Joe.

Many folks have the erroneous idea that Jackson is called "shoeless" because he used to play in his bare feet down south. The "shoeless" title came about in this way.

Jackson's own baseball shoes were missing one day just before game time in the little southern town where he performed early in his youth. Another player, with an extra pair of shoes, loaned them to Joe. The shoes were far too small for Jackson, but he squeezed his feet into them in some way and proceeded to his work.

Along about the fourth inning the shoes hurt Jackson so much that he took them off while in the outfield, laying them on the grass alongside. For two or three innings he got away with it—no one discovered he was playing in his stocking feet. But a short time later he had to race in back of the infield for a "texas league" swat and then the stockinged feet were noticed.

"You've got a shoeless player, eh?" commented the rival manager, and ever afterward Jackson became known as the "shoeless" wonder.

Doyle Hopes to Repeat.

Having tasted the sweetness of being champion, Larry Doyle, the Giant captain, is striving earnestly to accomplish the trick again.

Doyle got away poorly during the first two or three weeks of the 1916 campaign and then he began to hit. He slammed the offerings of the western flingers to the far corners and repeated against the easterners after the Giants got back from their triumphal tour in the sunset region.

Doyle lifted himself from an inconspicuous position to one near the top. And he's clinging there without apparent effort.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Those mighty batting powers of the Giants have gone skittering. One hit in nine innings doesn't speak well for the hitters.

The Reds and Braves went at it again. This time though it was 12 innings. The Braves had the scalps at the finish.

It's tough to go 12 innings and then be beaten out by a home run. But that was the fate of the Pirates at the hands of the Phillies.

The western clubs in the American League scored again. They won all the games. The Tigers slammed the Yankees; Walter Johnson was easy for the White Sox; the Browns staged a batting rally in the eighth and that was enough for the Red Sox.

The Dodgers took another from the Cardinals and today are ready for bear meat. If they don't do any better against the Cubs than did the Giants the bear meat is apt to be very tough.

Fancy Ways With Strawberries.

This makes a nice emergency dessert, as it is so quickly prepared. Put into a large bowl one and a half cups ripe strawberries, one cup sugar, and the white of one egg.

Beat with wire whisk until stiff enough to hold its shape, pile lightly on a dish, chill, and surround with macaroons. Serve with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with orange extract.

Strawberry Custard.

Make a boiled custard with one quart milk, beaten yolks of five eggs, half cup sugar, and half teaspoon vanilla. Crush and strain one pint ripe berries, and mix with them half cup powdered sugar, then gradually beat this into the stiffly whipped whites of four eggs. Serve the custard in glass cups and pile the strawberry float on top.

Strawberry Sherbet.

Mash one quart ripe strawberries to a smooth paste, add juice of one lemon, one tablespoon orange-flower water, and three pints water. Let stand three hours, then strain the juice through a cloth over three-fourths pounds sugar, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Set on ice to chill before serving.

Strawberry Ice.

Boil one pint sugar with one quart water until it drops like honey. Cool, add the juice of one lemon and one pint strawberry juice. Put into freezer and when partly frozen add one cup thick cream and finish freezing. Serve with lady fingers.

Strawberry Cockades.

Fill small glasses with halved ripe strawberries. Mix one cup cream, half cup strained honey, and juice of half a lemon, and whip until stiff. Put a spoonful of cream over the berries in each cup, and sprinkle the top with freshly grated coconut.

Strawberry Cream.

To one cup mashed strawberries add half cup sugar and one pint double cream, whip until stiff, chill, and serve in glasses.—Farm and Home.

To the Boat Races.

Steamer Gardner will make special trip to boat races Saturday, June 17, leaving Rondout 1 o'clock. Will anchor at finish line. Round trip, 50c.—Advertisement.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS LAST GAME 6-5

Wednesday afternoon at the Athletic Field the high school baseball nine defeated Saugerties for the second time this season, and thereby claims superiority over all the teams played this season. It was a very fast game with lots of interest for all concerned. It was in fact the best game the maroon and white has played at home this season.

A week or so ago Saugerties beat the local team at Saugerties, by a score of 13 to 5, and although the high school's loyal supporters were confident of a victory before the game started, their hopes began to dwindle and fade away by the time the visitors had five runs to our two.

Support From Side Lines.

The support rendered by those who attended the game in favor of Kingston did much toward winning the game. The noise undoubtedly was the cause of the Saugerties pitcher's confusion, and probably put some "pep" into our batters as well.

The Game by Innings.

Saugerties started in to make things lively from the very first, for their second man up got a run, which performance Kingston was unable to duplicate until the last of the fifth. Though last four innings were a good imitation of big league ball playing. There were no bases on balls and only three men found themselves on second base at any time.

In the fifth, Saugerties was satisfied to rest easy with one run she had obtained, but the local team was by now tired of carrying around a goose egg. Kiernan being given a base on balls, little Bill decided it was time for a two base hit. We got it and when Silverman duplicated his performance, McLaughlin also brought home the second run.

Saugerties could not have been fooling along with the local boys, and it must have been a mere matter of chance that in the next inning four of the men, Keely, Overbagh, Edwards, and Soura, each got a run. This was a rather hard one for Kingston to swallow, and the fans began to shake their heads in doubt.

But the seventh made things look somewhat better. Saugerties went out in one, two, three order, and then Joyce and again McLaughlin brought in another run apiece. The score now stood five to four in Saugerties favor.

The eighth now passed quickly for both sides, as Ralyea was the only one to reach first.

But the ninth was a little different. It was then that Kingston showed her "pep." Bill struck out two of the visitors and Joyce got in connection with a fly to left field. Then when our team stepped up to bat the tale was different. Several hundred spectators suddenly turned apparent managers, and Saugerties pitcher, who tipped the beam at two hundred fifty, and who has played with them since the time the local players were in grammar school, lost his equilibrium and walked Joyce. Again his curves failed and Miles got a hit on an error on the part of the third baseman. Joyce was on third and Miles on second. It was now that the little local pitcher won his own game or rather saved it by sending a very acceptable sacrifice fly far back into left field. This brought Joyce home and it only needed another hit by Silverman to bring in Miles with the winning run.

Summary of the game.

Saugerties stole two bases, made three two-base hits and no sacrifices. Their pitcher gave seven hits and three bases on balls, and struck out four batters.

Kingston stole eleven bases, made two two-base hits, one double play, two sacrifice hits and one sacrifice fly. McLaughlin gave his opponents eight base hits and only one base on balls. He hit two men, and struck out twelve. The umpire was Robins.

EAT MORE FISH!

FISH DINNERS are one of the first feasts that is thought of by the vacationist when he goes out for a holiday. The individual who can get to a seashore does not feel that the outing has been complete without a shore dinner. The camper who goes to the mountains does not feel that his outing has been complete unless he has been able to catch enough FISH in the rivers or lakes to have a FISH dinner. Take even the small boy, the first thing he thinks of at vacation time is to go fishing so that he may have the pleasure of a change of diet such as fresh FISH. It is not always the sport of catching the FISH that creates this desire but it certainly is the call of nature for a change of diet, and nothing is more pleasant than FISH, which is

The convention of the Ulster county suffragettes opened this morning in the Wiltwyck Inn hall, on Main street, with about 40 "equal rights" believers in attendance. The opening session was held at 11 o'clock, and the time during the morning was taken up with discussing the issues of the campaign and making preparations to increase the strength of the party in the county. Mrs. Whitehouse, chairman of the New York State Woman Suffrage party, was in attendance at the session and discussed plans for the local organization. Lunch was served the guests in the lunch room of the inn at 1 o'clock. At 2:30 the session was resumed and plans were again discussed for the good of the cause. A delegation of out of town people were present. Mrs. Laidlaw of New York city was also expected to speak this afternoon.

A Japanese "Comic"

"After scanning a Japanese comic for a few minutes," says a writer in Cartoons Magazine, "one might conclude that the mystic Jap hasn't a greatly different viewpoint than other folks when his thoughts are immersed in the lighter things of life. Even the time honored, hoary jests of the paper and his ever readiness to resent encroachments upon his fenced domain or peace of mind and places in the funny pages of Japan's publications, as they still do in ours. Quite a typical example of Japanese comic page material, and one which uses this very theme, is represented in a strip that appeared not long ago in Osaka Puck. Two characters are used—one a fellow of the Ope Billcock type, and the other an ordinary everyday bull. The former finds it necessary to cross a bridgeless stream. Summoning his wits to his aid he seizes a rock and hurls it at the other's head. Then, grabbing a plank and placing it across that part of his anatomy most logically open to attack, he sits on the stream and awaits the impact. The time is partly by the onrushing bull lifts him to the top of the plank in the twinkling of an eye. The line beneath the picture reads, 'Now I see that necessity makes inventors.'"

In the Days Before Coal.

People sometimes wonder how their forefathers got on in the days before coal became the staple heater. They fared ill. Wood was the chief commodity in use, both in its natural state and as charcoal, the latter being prepared in the country, and suburbs of London and brought into the city in carts, the chief mart for its sale being at Smithfield and Cornhill. By an edict of Richard II. it was decreed that the price of charcoal should be fixed at tenpence per ton. From Michaelmas to Easter and thenceforward per quarter during the remainder of the year, the regulation of its sale, as well as that of firewood being committed to the mayor and aldermen. Among the poorer folk fern, reeds and stubble served as fuel, and quite a common method of keeping warm was to sit over pots filled with hot water.—London Chronicle.

Be true to yourself and you do not need to worry about what the neighbors think.

Handsome is That Handsome Doesn't.

The idea that handsome is that handsome does have caused so much trouble ever since it was first sprung upon an unsuspecting world that it is high time it is disposed of. In the first place, if you are really handsome, especially if you happen to be a girl, you don't have to do anything else. As a matter of fact, no beautiful girl ever does anything else. It isn't necessary for her to cook or sew or even talk. All she has to do is to sit still and be loved, and the line usually forms on the right. If you do a thing, on the other hand, the mere fact that you have done it is supposed to insure your being handsome. What nonsense! If you do the handsome thing it will never be regarded as handsome by the only people whose opinion is worth while, because with them doing the handsome is so usual that it becomes commonplace. If you are homely nothing you do will be handsome.

To do a handsome thing, therefore, always start by being handsome. Then you won't have to do it.—Life.

Mohonk Lake, June 14.—A bad get-away by Lotz, pitching for Eastman's Business College here today, enabled Mohonk to score three runs in the first inning on a base on balls and four hits. After that, neither side could accumulate more than one lone run, the final score being 4 to 1. Womble's fielding was a feature. Owl pitched a steady game throughout, being especially strong in the pinches. Lotz pitched a good article of ball after the first inning. The score:

Important to Education.

The most important part of education is the training of the senses which, besides supplying the faculty of accurate observation, creates the habit of careful reflection and measured reasoning. The boys on the farms, no less than those who are being trained in the trades, acquire extensive development of the senses. The advent of mechanical power and machinery, however, has impaired this development.—President Charles W. Eliot.

Brought a Sample With Her.

The tobacconist watched her outside his shop window. For fully half an hour she stood there peering through the panes. Then she came in. She fumbled and fussed, and at length brought forth a little packet. This she carefully unfolded till, finally, a small stub end came to view. The tobacconist raised his eyebrows inquiringly. "Good afternoon," said the lady, holding up the stub end gingerly for inspection. "Here is a remnant of one of my husband's special cigars. Have you anything to match it?"

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 15.—Fortune hasn't smiled with any real sweetness upon Joe Jackson. His achievements over the sweep of four campaigns were great enough to have caused him to be heralded as "the greatest player in the game." But Fate kept Ty Cobb in the frolic and Joe never has ranked better than a runner up.

Cobb has acted as an eclipse of Jackson's greatness. No matter what deeds Joe performed; Ty went just a bit beyond—just enough farther to cloud the brilliance of the "shoeless wonder."

Back in 1911, Joe's first full season as a major leaguer, has clubbed for the wonderful average of .408. In the entire 49 years history of the modern game, only about a dozen batters have gone beyond .400. It would seem that such a showing with the bludgeon must win the batting honors for the southern batting demon. But it didn't, because that was the year when Ty Cobb slugged to his record mark of .420—and Joe finished second.

The following season—1912—Jackson hit for .355 and Cobb again beat him to the wire with .410. No matter how well Joe performed, Ty's accomplishments were a bit superior. And Fate seems to have had a hand in it, because when Ty has slumped, a mix has similarly slumped. Cobb hasn't been with Jackson. The "breaks" have gone to Cobb—all of them.

Cobb is Jackson's Nemesis.

In 1913 Jackson hit for .373—and Cobb went to .390. In 1914 Jackson dropped to .338 and Cobb to .368. Last season Cobb hit .379 while Joe's total was only .308.

Had Joe amassed his .408 and .395 averages in any other years than 1911 or 1912 he would have acquired the honor of being the batting leader of the Johnson circuit. But fortune ruled that he should hit always below Cobb.

This season the same state of afflicted Joe. Luck never has been breezing along as merrily as of yore. If he finishes around .360 for the year he will be surprising many. Jackson has beaten that mark in three starts out of five. His grand average from 1911 to 1915 inclusive is .364. But now that the opportunity is before him, Joe doesn't seem to be able to grasp it. Ty isn't connecting with any degree of frequency—but Joe is hitting with lesser degree.

Five years a big league star, five years of hitting for an average of .364; once of .408 hitter, but never the batting leader. That is Joe's history.

How He Became "Shoeless" Joe. Many folks have the erroneous idea that Jackson is called "shoeless" because he used to play in his bare feet down south. The "shoeless" title came about in this way:

Jack's own baseball shoes were missing one day just before game time in the little southern town where he performed early in his youth. Another player, with an extra pair of shoes, loaned them to Joe. The shoes were far too small for Jackson, but he squeezed his feet into them in some way and proceeded to his work.

Along about the fourth inning the shoes hurt Jackson so much that he took them off while in the outfield, laying them on the grass alongside. For two or three innings he got away with it—no one discovered he was playing in his stocking feet. But a short time later he had to race in back of the infield for a "Texas league" swat and then the stockinged feet were noticed.

"You've got a shoeless player, eh?" commented the rival manager, and ever afterward Jackson became known as the "shoeless" wonder.

Doyle Hopes to Repeat. Having tasted the sweetness of being champion, Larry Doyle, the Giant captain, is striving earnestly to accomplish the trick again.

Doyle got away poorly during the first two or three weeks of the 1916 campaign and then he began to hit. He slammed the offerings of the western flingers to the far corners and repeated against the easterners after the Giants got back from their triumphal tour in the sunset region.

Doyle lifted himself from an inconspicuous position to one near the top. And he's clinging there without apparent effort.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Those mighty batting powers of the Giants have gone aglimmering. One hit in nine innings doesn't speak well for the hitters.

The Reds and Braves went at it again. This time though it was 12 innings. The Braves had the scalps at the finish.

It's tough to go 12 innings and then be beaten out by a home run. But that was the fate of the Pirates at the hands of the Phillies.

The western clubs in the American League scored again. They won all the games. The Tigers slammed the Yankees; Walter Johnson was easy for the White Sox; the Browns staged a batting rally in the eighth and that was enough for the Red Sox.

The Dodgers took another from the Cardinals and today are ready for bear meat. If they don't do any better against the Cubs than did the Giants the bear meat is apt to be very tough.

Fancy Ways With Strawberries.

This makes a nice emergency dessert, as it is so quickly prepared. Put into a large bowl one and a half cups ripe strawberries, one cup sugar, and the white of one egg. Beat with wire whisk until stiff. Pour into a dish, and surround with cream. Serve with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with orange extract.

Strawberry Custard.

Make a boiled custard with one quart milk, beaten yolks of five eggs, half cup sugar, and half teaspoon vanilla. Crush and strain one pint ripe berries, and mix with them half cup powdered sugar, then gradually beat this into the stiffly whipped whites of four eggs. Serve the custard in glass cups and pile the strawberry float on top.

Strawberry Sherbet.

Mash one quart ripe strawberries to a smooth paste, add juice of one lemon, one tablespoon orange-flower water, and three parts water. Let stand three hours, then strain the juice through a cloth over three-fourths pounds sugar, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Set on ice to chill before serving.

Strawberry Ice.

Boil one pint sugar with one quart water until it drops like honey. Cool, add the juice of one lemon and one pint strawberry juice. Put into freezer and when partly frozen add one cup thick cream and finish freezing. Serve with lady fingers.

Strawberry Cockades.

Fill small glasses with halved ripe strawberries. Mix one cup cream, half cup strained honey, and juice of half a lemon, and whip until stiff. Put a spoonful of cream over the berries in each cup, and sprinkle the top with freshly grated coconut.

Strawberry Cream.

To one cup mashed strawberries add half cup sugar and one pint double cream, whip until stiff, chill, and serve in glasses.—Farm and Home.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS LAST GAME 6-5

Wednesday afternoon at the Athletic Field the high school baseball nine defeated Saugerties for the second time this season, and thereby claims superiority over all the teams played this season. It was a very fast game with lots of interest for all concerned. It was in fact the best game the maroon and white has played at home this season.

A week or so ago Saugerties beat the local team at Saugerties by a score of 13 to 5, and although the high school's loyal supporters were confident of a victory before the game started, their hopes began to dwindle and fade away by the time the visitors had five runs to our two.

Support From Side Lines.

The support rendered by those who attended the game in favor of Kingston did much toward winning the game. The noise undoubtedly was the cause of the Saugerties pitcher's confusion, and probably put some "pep" into our batters as well.

The Game by Innings.

Saugerties started in to make things lively from the very first, for their second man up got a run, which performance Kingston was unable to duplicate until the last of the fifth. Those first four innings were a good imitation of big league ball playing. There were no bases on balls and only three men found themselves on second base at any time.

In the fifth, Saugerties was satisfied to rest easy with one run ahead, but the local team was by now tired of carrying around a goose egg. Kiernan, being given a base on balls, little Bill decided it was time for a two base hit. We got it and when Silverman duplicated his performance, McAuliffe also brought home the second run.

Saugerties could not have been fooling along with the local boys, and it must have been a mere matter of chance that in the next inning four of the men, Keeley, Overbach, Edwards, and Soura, each got a run. This was a rather hard one for Kingston to swallow, and the fans began to shake their heads in doubt.

But the seventh made things look somewhat better. Saugerties went out in one, two, three order, and then Joyce and again McAuliffe brought in another run apiece. The score now stood five to four in Saugerties favor.

The eighth now passed quickly for both sides, as Ralysa was the only one to reach first.

But the ninth was a little different. It was then that Kingston showed her "pep." Bill struckout two of the visitors and Joyce got in connection with a fly to left field. Then when our team stepped up to bat the tale was different. Several hundred spectators suddenly turned apparent maniacs, and Saugerties pitcher, who tipped the beam at two hundred fifty, and who has played with them since the time the local players were in grammar school, lost his equilibrium and walked Joyce. Again his curves failed and Miles got a hit on an error on the part of the third baseman. Joyce was on third and Miles on second. It was now that the little local pitcher won his own game or rather saved it by sending a very acceptable sacrifice fly far back into left field. This brought Joyce home and it only needed another hit by Silverman to bring in Miles with the winning run.

Summary of the Game.

Saugerties stole two bases, made three two-base hits and no sacrifices. Their pitcher gave seven hits and three bases on balls, and struck out four batters.

Kingston stole eleven bases, made two two-base hits, one double play, two sacrifice hits and one sacrifice fly. McAuliffe gave his opponents eight base hits and only one base on balls. He hit two men, and struck out twelve. The umpire was Robins.
